Spirits High After 24 Hours In Space

Space Mission Control Center Indicates Full 97-Hour Flight

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Astronauts James McDivitt and Edward White whirled into the second day of their marathon space mission today, their spirits high and their flight plan back on schedule after some hectic early hours during which White strolled in space.

The Mission Control Center said everything appeared favorable for the Gemini 4 spacecraft to complete its full 97-hour, 50-minute mission.

Asks Soviets To Join In Peace Search

'Join US Search,' Bid from Johnson To Soviet People

CHICAGO (AP) — President Johnson has told the people of the Soviet Union he wants them to withdraw support of aggression and subversion and join the United States in a common search for peace.

Appearing Thursday night before several thousand Cook County Democrats who paid $100 a plate to hear him deliver his first on-the-record speech to a political audience since the November election, Johnson said at the outset: "I do not believe this is an appropriate place tonight for partisanship."

Declaring that the peace of mankind transcends political considerations, Johnson said he had this message for the people of the Soviet Union: "There is no American interest in conflict with the Soviet people anywhere. And no true Soviet interest is going to be served by the support of aggression or subversion anywhere in the world."

"We of the United States of America stand ready tonight, as always, to go with you onto the fields of peace."

The audience applauded his unusual message to the Soviets. However, the applause seemed even noisier when the President announced later in his speech that he had ordered the withdrawal of the 2,100 Marines still in the Dominican Republic.

Johnson said the nation's purpose in Santo Domingo and elsewhere "is—and will always be—to serve the peace of mankind."

He said, "The American people want to be a part of no war. But the American people want no part of appeasement or of any aggression."

In an apparent effort to contrast his recent policies with those followed by many countries prior to World War II, Johnson said:

"In the 1930s, we made our fate not by what we did but by what we failed to do. We propelled ourselves — and all mankind — toward tragedy, not by decisiveness but by vacillation, not by determination and resolution but by hesitancy and irresolution, not by action but by inaction."

He asserted "there just must be no such failure in the 1960s."

Johnson flew here Thursday afternoon for the speech and returned to Washington immediately afterward.

His 17-year-old daughter Luci went to Chicago with him but did not return.

Emotional Outburst On Learning His Sentence Was Death

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — Nathan Eli, broke down and sobbed Thursday after he was sentenced to death in the slaying of a young Navy wife.

Eli, a former resident of West Plains, Mo., and Kansas City, was convicted of first degree murder in the slaying of Mrs. Constance Dunn, 24.

Witnesses testified at his trial that Mrs. Dunn had been assaulted, stabbed twice in the chest and strangled with an electric cord last Feb. 20.

Eli was a vacuum cleaner salesman.

Mrs. Dunn's body was found by a milkman two days after the slaying, with her two small children unattended in the house.

If there are no hitches, America's longest manned space flight will end at 12:06 p.m. EST Monday with a parachute splashdown in the Atlantic Ocean 400 miles southwest of Bermuda.

During a pass over the Houston Control Center on the 14th orbit today, White told capsule communicator Virgil Grissom a few more details about his 20-minute excursion into space during orbit No. 3 Thursday.

White described as "vivid blue" the waters of the Gulf of Mexico and the Caribbean. He said he clearly saw Houston and Galveston Bay as he floated on the end of a golden lifeline more than 100 miles above the earth.

He said he even saw Clear Lake, about 3 miles long and 1½ miles wide, near the Houston homes of both astronauts.

White said the jet-gun maneuvering unit he used made it much easier to move about outside the capsule. When he wasn't using it, he said, he had difficulty getting around.

White also said he had walked on the equipment section of the Gemini 4 during his excursion. "It looked like I was right on top of it," he said. "It's kinda hard to get traction."

Then Grissom passed on some news from home. He reported that the Hawks, a Pee-Wee League baseball team for which McDivitt's 8-year-old son Mike plays, defeated the Falcons, 3-2.

McDivitt was asleep at the time the word was relayed. John Hodge, the overnight flight director, told newsmen today that during the night McDivitt and White managed to get back on the original flight plan.

The plan had been disrupted during the first three orbits when McDivitt made a futile attempt to catch and rendezvous with another satellite — the burned-out third stage of the Titan 2 rocket that boosted them into orbit.

After expending about 40 percent of his fuel, McDivitt abandoned the effort. The chase contributed to a one-orbit delay in White's space excursion.

Hodge said that throughout the night, the Gemini 4 was allowed to drift on its orbital path without any expenditure of fuel.

Hodge said two orbit-changing maneuvers would be dropped from the flight and there would be some curtailment of scientific experiments that require spacecraft maneuvering.

He said McDivitt and White were getting used to sleeping in space after initial "tossing and turning" periods. Each slept well on their second four-hour slumber period, he reported.

"Now that we're back on a regular schedule," Hodge said, "we'll be able to start working out compatible, work, sleep and eat cycles for future long-duration flights."

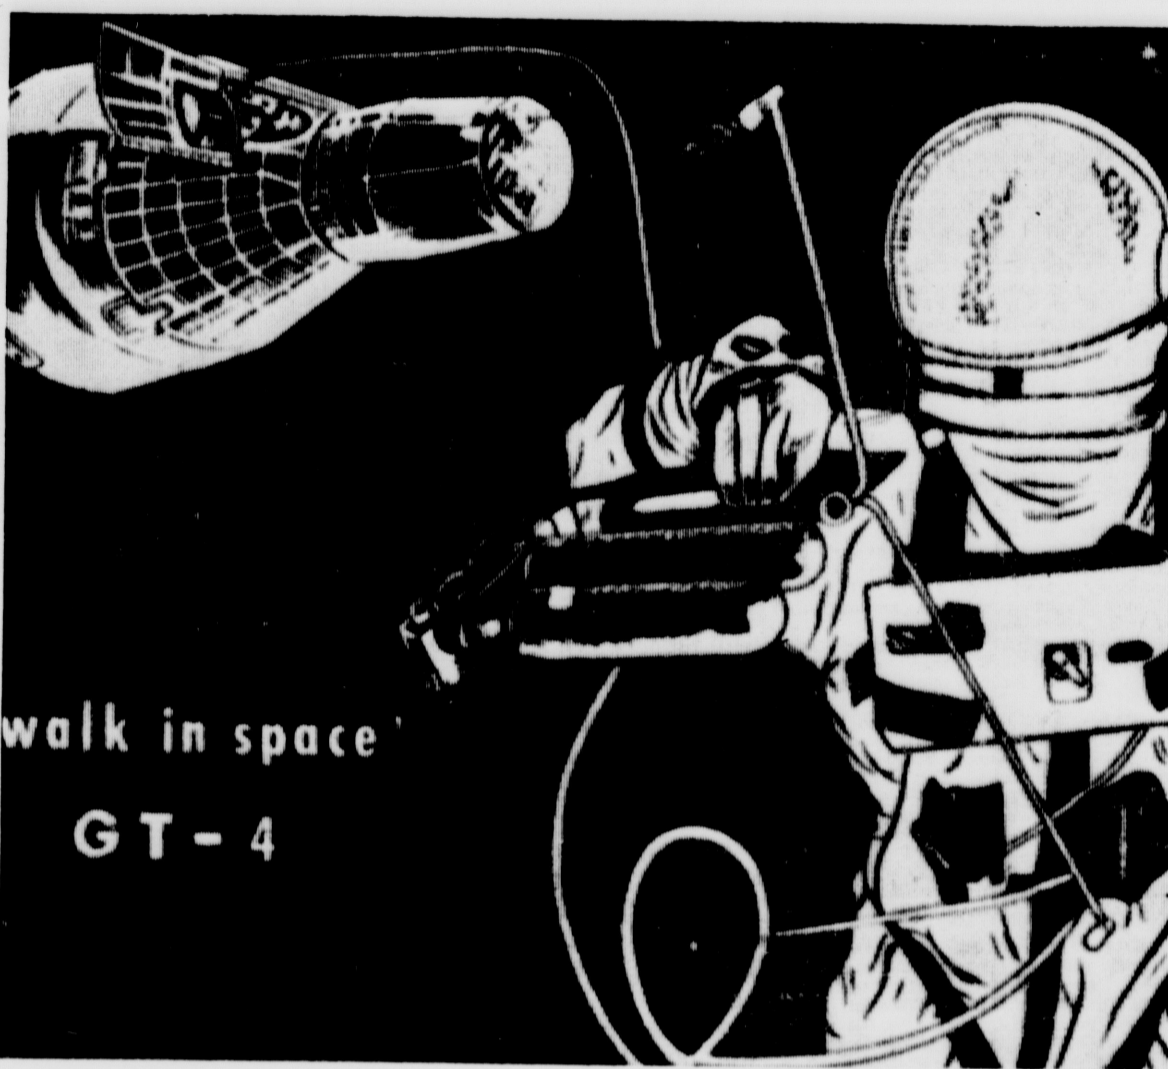

This is one of the major goals of the flight, along with gathering of medical data to determine how well the astronauts withstand long exposure to the weightless world of space.

Gemini 4 began its second 24-hour period at 10:16 a.m. EST today. At 8:37 p.m. it will surpass Gordon Cooper's U.S. man-in-space record of 34 hours 20 minutes, established in May 1963.

Russian cosmonaut Valery Bykovsky holds the record of 119 hours 6 minutes.

Two Marines Die In Skirmish

Cong Toll By Yanks

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—U.S. Marines killed 19 Viet Cong and wounded 11 in skirmishes today in the Da Nang-Phu Bai area, a spokesman announced. He said two Marines were killed and 19 wounded.

The Leathernecks took the offensive in a day of scattered ground fighting across South Viet Nam, in which the Viet Cong strove to maintain the initiative. Government casualties for today and Thursday rose to at least 239 killed, wounded and missing.

In Saigon, the National Legislative Council apparently resolved a political crisis simmering for two weeks. The 20-member council upheld a right of Premier Phan Huy Quat, challenged by Phan Khac Suu, chief of state, to fire two Cabinet ministers. A spokesman said Suu was now supporting Quat.

U.S. Ambassador Maxwell D. Taylor, who postponed a projected trip to Washington as a weekend to keep watch on the crisis, may now head to the United States in the next few days.

A ranking U.S. military spokesman, speaking of the makeup of enemy forces, said there are so many of North Viet Nam's regular troops fighting now in South Viet Nam "it is becoming academic" whether they are here as regular North Vietnamese units.

Vietnamese troops were caught in two more Communist ambushes, one a followup action by the Reds to an earlier ambush near Lao Thien, about 150 miles northeast of Saigon.

Casualties in the first ambush of a six-vehicle convoy Thursday totaled 15 government troops killed, 15 wounded and 15 missing. Two armored cars were destroyed, two trucks damaged and two machine guns lost. Communist losses were not known.

A relief force sent in a few hours later was hit about seven miles northeast of the first action. The government losses in this engagement were nine killed and 14 wounded. Planes and artillery fire finally routed the guerrillas.

Another ambush occurred near Kontum, about 285 miles northeast of Saigon, where a six-truck convoy was on a food pickup mission. A military spokesman said first reports listed 12 Vietnamese killed and nine missing. There were no reports of Communist losses.

In the Mekong River delta, Vietnamese forces fought a day-long battle Thursday trying to bottle up strong guerrilla units at Cai Lay, about 50 miles southwest of Saigon.

Disaster Aid For Missouri Request In

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Gov. Warren E. Hearnes today asked President Johnson for $1.14 million in disaster aid for six northeastern Missouri counties that were battered by the biggest Mississippi River flood of all time in April and May.

He said the flood losses would have been much worse if the area had not had early warning of the coming flood waters and been able to prepare for it. State and local officials teamed up to sandbag where needed and other preparations.

At times, during the period from April 15 to May 8, as many as 258 National Guardsmen helped in the area.

The state Highway Department, Boat Commission, Highway Patrol, Surplus Property Agency, divisions of Welfare and Health, Water Pollution Board, University of Missouri, Rural Extension and Civil Defense all took part in the battle against high flood losses.

Hearnes assessed county disaster aid needs this way: Clark County $260,000; Lewis $132,000; Lincoln $150,000; Marion $156,000; Pike $74,000; Ralls $25,000 and St. Charles $343,000.

In his letter to the President, Hearnes said with the early warning a lot of things were done to ward off the full brunt of the flood.

"These preparations," he said "which were carried on night and day for weeks, have saved millions of dollars in private and public damage which might otherwise have happened."

"Nevertheless, severe flooding has taken place."

Police Stamp Of Approval On Auto Check-Up

Chief of Police William Miller announced today that the Police Department has sanctioned an auto safety check to be conducted here by the Drag-Ons car club Saturday, June 12.

Club members will operate two lanes of checkers in the 100 block of East Fourth Street between the hours of 10 a.m. and 5 p.m.

Miller pointed out that the Drag-Ons members will be conducting the safety checks themselves and police will assist only with traffic control.

"The department, however, highly recommends that all motorists take this opportunity to have their vehicle safety checked," Miller said.

Members will check points on the vehicles such as lights, brakes, windshield wipers, directional signals, steering, tires and so on.

Miller emphasized that the club is holding the safety check in accordance with National Safety Council recommendations that such clinics be held early in the summer vacation season.

BULLETIN

BIG SPRINGS, Neb. (AP) — The bank president, his cashier and a clerk were shot to death today in a noon-time holdup of the Farmers State Bank of Big Springs, a town of 500 in far western Nebraska.

A fourth bank employee was wounded and taken to a hospital in Julesburg, Colo., about 10 miles away.

It was not immediately learned whether a single bandit staged the holdup or whether he had accomplices. One report said the getaway car headed north, another said it turned southwest toward Denver.

A Nebraska safety patrolman, Gene Morrissey, identified the dead as Andreas Kjeldgaard, in his 70s, president of the bank; Glenn Hendricksen, about 60, the cashier; and Mrs. Lois Ann Hothan, about 35, a clerk.

Franklin Kjeldgaard, about 25, a nephew of the bank president, was wounded in the neck and was taken to a hospital.

Big Springs Marshal Harry Shaw said a bank employee told him some money was taken from the cash drawer "but I don't think the vault was entered."

Gemini Flight Top News

LONDON (AP) — The Gemini space flight was the top news in West European newspapers today. Millions followed the American astronauts' progress on television and radio.

London papers pointed out that astronaut Edward H. White II had walked in space longer than Soviet cosmonaut Alexei Leonov. "The space walk champ," said a headline in the Sun.

Britain's top space tracker, Sir Bernard Lovell of the Jodrell Bank Observatory, said, "The American achievement, coming quickly after the Russians, demonstrates how closely matched they are for a manned lunar landing."

The Gemini flight was front-page news in Moscow also, but most papers carried an early Tass dispatch from New York stressing the failure to rendezvous with the booster rocket.

Pravda, the Soviet Communist party organ, published a brief dispatch from a Western news agency reporting that White was in space for 20 minutes. Apparently the other morning newspapers went to press before news of White's feat arrived.

"The Soviet people sincerely congratulate the two cosmonauts and the American scientists on this achievement," said Moscow radio after broadcasting word of the Gemini launch.

The live television transmissions of the takeoff, relayed to Europe by the Early Bird satellite, were a huge success.

Swedish TV experts described it as "a tele-technical triumph."

Tourists packed the lounges of Norwegian hotels to watch the transmission.

The Brussels newspaper Het Laatste Nieuws noted that the Gemini men had failed in their attempt to rendezvous with their booster rocket but commented: "What is in favor of the American scientists is that they undertake their space flight totally in the open, so that the whole world can live success or failure with them in the very instant it takes place."

Bandits Net $11,200

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Two bold bandits pulled an $11,200 armed holdup at a traffic-light stop Thursday, apparently unnoticed by other motorists.

James T. Smith, a supermarket owner, and his manager, Gerald Ervin, had just withdrawn the money from a bank and were returning to the store.

As they stopped for the light at the intersection of Chouteau Drive and Antioch Road, Smith told police, two other cars, one in front and the other in back, hemmed his car in. The two drivers then walked up and said, "This is a holdup."

"Both held revolvers, Smith said. 'I could see the bullets.'"

LBJ Orders All Troops Out

Dominican Pull-Out

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP) — The U.S. Marines said goodbye to Santo Domingo today as President Johnson ordered the rest of them out.

Helicopters were airlifting the 2,100 leathernecks to the carrier Boxer offshore.

There was no indication whether the carrier and her escort would sail for other waters once the Marines were aboard. Johnson announced in Chicago Thursday night that Brazilian Gen. Hugo Panasco Alvim, commander of the Inter-American Force in the Dominican Republic, had advised him "that conditions in the Dominican Republic now permit further reduction of our military personnel."

"I have accordingly ordered the withdrawal of all remaining units of the United States Marine Corps totaling approximately 2,100 men," the President said.

Court Petition Amendment Plan

Sedalia Mayor L. L. Studer late Thursday evening received notification from the VUMORE Co., of Oklahoma City, Okla., one of the unsuccessful bidders for a CATV license here, that the firm had instructed a local attorney to withdraw its name from a lawsuit filed in Circuit Court here last week, the mayor told The Democrat-Capital.

Mayor Studer said he received a telegram Thursday, stating: "The VUMORE Co. did not intend to be a party to the lawsuit and has requested . . . to withdraw our name as a participant . . ."

The telegram was signed by Robert M. Clark, president of the company, Studer said.

Mentioned in the telegram was James Buckley, Sedalia attorney, who filed a suit last week in an effort to seek a declaratory judgment in the Circuit Court, asking the court to declare that action by the city council granting a CATV license here as beyond the council's scope of authority.

Buckley said Thursday night he had not received notification from VUMORE, as had the mayor. However, he said, "All that was involved was a misunderstanding about the use of VUMORE's name as party plaintiff. The necessary papers are being prepared to change the name of the plaintiff from VUMORE to that of the local applicants. The validity of the lawsuit is not affected."

Presumably the amendment to the Circuit Court petition would entail changing the name of the plaintiff from Vumore to Total Television.

The bid for CATV filed with city council, which involved the Vumore Company, was listed as "Total Television of Sedalia, Inc., Vumore Company, Oklahoma City, Okla."

That bid listed the stock to be owned 51 per cent by the Vumore Company and 49 per cent by the following local stockholders: John L. Beatty, J. J. Knies, W. G. Whitaker, W. E. Bingaman, Geo. Thompson, Harry Naugel and William C. Hopkins.

Officers of the Total TV and Vumore bid were identified as: John L. Beatty, president and director; William C. Hopkins, executive vice president; Robert M. Clark, vice president and director; and Ronald L. Holley, secretary-treasurer and director.

No amendment to the petition for declaratory judgment had been filed in Circuit Court at early afternoon.

In last week's petition, the contention was made that Vumore had been denied a construction permit and the right to operate a community antenna TV system here because it would not pay in excess of ten percent of

Talks Are Resumed

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union and Red China have resumed talks on scientific cooperation, Tass said today. The official Soviet news agency said only that the talks were under way and did not report what was discussed.

Under discussion is possible participation in the federal government's "Little Appalachia plan" which was approved in Congress this week. It would provide $15 million toward the planning of public works in depressed areas.

Peace negotiators of the Organization of American States continued talks with rebel and junta leaders.

At U.N. headquarters in New York, Soviet Delegate Nikolai T. Fedorenko asked the Security Council to get the Inter-American Force out of the Dominican Republic and to investigate rebel charges that the junta has executed hundreds of rebel sympathizers.

U.S. Delegate Charles W. Yost replied that the council was not the place to discuss charges of violation of human rights. He said the Inter-American Force was helping the Dominicans and did not violate the U.N. Charter.

4-Year-Old Drowns In Swimming Pool

KANSAS CITY (AP) — A 4-year-old boy crawled over a four-foot fence to reach a neighbor's backyard swimming pool and drowned Thursday.

Dead is Courtlandt (Buddy) Pearce III, son of Mr. and Mrs. Courtlandt Pearce. The pool is at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Singer. It was being filled with water. Mrs. Singer said the gate to the pool area was locked, and that she heard no disturbance.

NAB Raps CATV As 'Big Threat'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Association of Broadcasters said Thursday that Community Antenna Television (CATV) "is a threat to local broadcasting" and should be regulated by the Federal Communications Commission.

Vincent T. Wasilewski, NAB president, told the House Commerce Committee "the rate of increase in the number of CATV systems, their movement from fringe areas into areas served by multiple television signals, their imminent entry into our largest cities, demonstrates the urgent need for immediate action."

Wasilewski contended the commission now has authority to adopt reasonable regulations governing CATV operations, and added:

"Since the commission must gauge the effect of CATV on local stations and the public they serve, it must be able to regulate the facilities used to bring service to that public."

CATV systems set up big antennas to pick up TV signals in areas where reception is weak, and then pipe the signals into homes by wire at a price.

Wasilewski said Congress "should limit CATV operations to the receipt and simultaneous retransmission of off-the-air broadcast signals and that such systems not be used to originate program material of any kind."

Four Governors Meet To Discuss Regional Developing Program

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (AP) — The governors of Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma and Arkansas convened here today to discuss a regional economic development program for the Ozark-Ouachita hill country.

The governors, Warren E. Hearnes of Missouri, Orval Faubus of Arkansas, William H. Avery of Kansas, and Henry Bellmon of Oklahoma, are concerned with the area, which has a history of chronic unemployment and low income.

Under discussion is possible participation in the federal government's "Little Appalachia plan" which was approved in Congress this week. It would provide $15 million toward the planning of public works in depressed areas.

Peace negotiators of the Organization of American States continued talks with rebel and junta leaders.

At U.N. headquarters in New York, Soviet Delegate Nikolai T. Fedorenko asked the Security Council to get the Inter-American Force out of the Dominican Republic and to investigate rebel charges that the junta has executed hundreds of rebel sympathizers.

No Complete Answer In Air Strikes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey says air strikes alone won't do the job and the war in Viet Nam will have to be won on the ground by South Vietnamese forces.

Humphrey said in an Associated Press interview he believes that South Vietnamese fighting units — given sufficient time — can subdue their Communist opponents.

He said he thinks the Viet Cong will call it quits once the Communists become convinced the United States is determined to stay to the end in South Viet Nam.

Humphrey said that while a year or two ago he had deep concern over U.S. involvement in the area he now strongly supports the kind of action President Johnson has taken there.

"I'm still concerned, but I know what we're doing is what we have to do," he said.

Some questions and answers on Viet Nam:

Q. Do you really believe we can win there?

A. If we have the patience and the will and the determination, and if we seek no quick and easy answers and any sudden victories, I believe we can win. I think we'll have to win on the ground, and I think we'll have to win in South Viet Nam.

I think that the procedures which are being presently applied show the signs of success. There will be periods of time when it will look rather dismal, but as long as we remember that we're essentially an air power and a sea power, and as long as we maintain secure areas on the coast lines and start to expand that perimeter — seeking to pacify as the South Vietnamese and our forces move inland — I think that in due time, if we stick with it and do not expect too much in a hurry, that we definitely can win.

Q. You said we'd have to win on the ground. Do you mean win with our ground forces?

A. No, I mean that while I do support the bombing — I think this has been a necessary part of strengthening the morale of South Viet Nam and of stopping down and slowing down the flow of goods and manpower into South Viet Nam from North Viet Nam — that ultimately this conflict will have to be won in South Viet Nam. This is where you win this battle. And I'm convinced that we can win it in South Viet Nam, particularly if the South Vietnamese will show some degree of stability in their government and the willingness to make some concessions to the realities of this war.

The South Vietnamese are very patriotic; they're very brave. My goodness, when I think of the losses they've suffered, the incredible losses, and the terror that's been inflicted upon them, I'm amazed at their bravery and their stick-to-itiveness. I feel that if we never let them feel for a minute that there are any doubts as to our conviction and our determination to stay there, that given the time, the Viet Cong will call it quits.

Stranger Leaves 3 Ducks For Family

RAYTOWN, Mo. (AP)—Someone unloaded three pet ducks on the Bert Thompsons while they were away from home the other night.

"We don't know whether this is some kind of joke," said Mrs. Thompson Thursday. "We have no idea where they came from. They are very friendly and want to be petted."

Neighbors told the Thompsons a man drove up to their house in a truck, unloaded a milk can, put the ducks in the garage and drove off.

In the can was feed. "At least the man was kind enough to leave feed, too," Mrs. Thompson said.

Religious Revival In Birmingham

BIRMINGHAM, England (AP) — A young Church of England order, nicknamed the "whizz-kid monks," is trying to revive religion in bad old Birmingham.

This industrial city of 1.25 million, England's second largest, is in the busy, smoky midlands. It has little history beyond its 150 years of making money. Its critics say Birmingham people are grossly materialistic.

So far as religion is concerned, the city is almost dead. It has the lowest communicant rate in the country. An Anglican parish which might nominally count 20,000 souls is lucky to get 20 worshippers on Sunday. They tell of one church where the vicar and one staunch supporter were alone for Communion on Easter Sunday.

Birmingham's famed Bull Ring is one of the sights of Britain. A sprawling complex of stores, galleries, bars and restaurants, it offers shopping in air-conditioned comfort to piped music under neon lights amidst splashing fountains and twittering birds. Shoppers can enter by escalator from a bus station underneath and do all their shopping without braving the weather outside. But there are no churches or chapels in the Bull Ring.

The monks of the Community of the Glorious Ascension, founded in 1961, are self-styled rebels who believe that Birmingham people don't want to know about conventional religion with its stained-glass saints.

So it's a rule of the order that every monk must have an outside job to carry him daily into the world. And, when the day's work is done, he must go out to the places where young people meet — the youth clubs, the coffee bars, the street corners.

Some, who are teaching, wear the gray robe of the order at work. Most do not, because it would make them too conspicuous among the workers at a factory bench or the salesmen in a store.

Father Peter Ball, 33, who founded the order and heads it, explains his new strategy at his priory in the suburb of Alum Rock.

"We are trying to make the world our monastery — learning to live our vows in the world without being too tied down by rules. But we live a highly disciplined Christian life. You might say we are trying to be the commando troops of the army of God. If we ever lose that intensity, we might as well pack up."

The money each monk earns is pooled and used to meet living expenses of the community. If one wants to buy anything for his own use — a book or a tool of his particular trade — the brothers must approve the expense.

Several ride motorcycles to and from work. They don crash helmets and black leather jackets over their rope-girt robes. This kind of thing has led to them being dubbed "the whizz-kid monks."

into space Thursday morning, us live from a strange alien out of sight but in constant communication with the world. But even so it remained primarily a television — not radio — story.

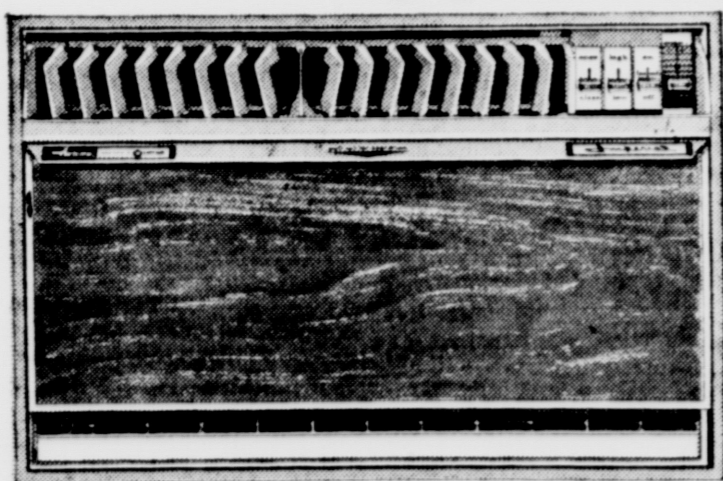

This was largely due to television's determination and by its elaborate preparation. The three major networks concentrated completely on the story for almost 10 hours. When they finally returned to regular programming in the late afternoon, the reporters were showing signs of whiskers, hoarseness and microphone fatigue.

There were two really critical periods during the long day and only one of them truly belonged to television. That came early when the Gemini-Titan rocket lifted majestically from its pad and soared out of sight. NBC had color cameras stationed at Cape Kennedy and in Houston, but its most rewarding moment came with a single burst of orange-red flame against a blue sky as the great gray tube lifted away.

The other exciting period was hours later when we were permitted to eavesdrop for 20 minutes or so as Air Force Maj. Edward H. White II engaged in his "extra vehicular activity." It was impossible to catch more than a word here and there since radio reception was very poor. Even so it was coming to

Computers Help Lads Pick Dates

NEW YORK (AP) — The panty raid is replaced by a sit-in, and telephone booth stuffing by protest marches. But those old-fashioned pastimes, dating and dancing, sometimes still exert a quaint appeal for the nation's college students.

On some campuses, though, the lads don't consider lining up their own girls for a dance. They are men enough to face up to the responsibilities of life in an electronic age. They let a computer do it.

This omniscient machine matches couples who have filled out cards with questions intended to check general interests, attitudes, personal data.

These included: Race preference, sex, that brother and sister are paired, a triumph perhaps for automation.

At the College of San Mateo in California the computer dance was sponsored by the school's Psychology Club. A local bank lent the computer and 40 questions were fed into it.

These included: Race preference, father's occupation, how many dates in high school, interests in art, music, literature, athletics and travel, if read daily newspaper and editorial page, how many movies attended on average.

From this 350 couples were matched, and several of them are still dating.

Ohio State University's affair, sponsored by the campus YMCA, attracted about 1,600 dancers. Questionnaires were filled out when students bought mixer tickets and questions dealt with age, height, dancing

Teach-in: Study in Futility

In England of the 1930s, a privileged minority of the nation's youth debated at the Oxford Union and adopted the resolution: "We will not fight for king or country."

This came at the time that the Nazis were in the ascendant across the channel. Unfortunately there was no counterpart to the Oxford students in the Germany of that day to declare, "Resolved. We will not fight for fuhrer or fatherland in pursuit of nationalistic and revengeful ambitions."

Had there been, these same young pacifists of England might not have found themselves within a few years indeed fighting and dying for king and country.

It is even possible that their very anti-war posture encouraged the dictator and helped make World War II inevitable.

This is the tragedy of the teach-in of our own time.

It is not that those who protest American actions in Viet Nam, and just about everything else that the United States does, are unpatriotic, are wrongly motivated and may not be courageous and entirely sincere in their exercise of their right of citizenship.

It is that they are naive and that their protests are futile.

They are futile not because our government is controlled by war mongers who are deaf to reason but because there exists no comparable pacifist movement in China or North Viet Nam with which they can unite to dissuade their governments from courses that might lead to war.

As in Hitler Germany, there is no intellectual freedom in these Communist countries, no academic brotherhood devoted to the pursuit of truth to serve as a bridge across the ideological and diplomatic chasm separating different peoples.

One great hope for the world is that intellectual kinships on various levels are slowly developing between the West and Russia—in science and industry and art—which may one day have profound influence on the behavior of governments.

But there are no such people-to-people bonds with Red China. It may be argued that this country is partly to blame for forbidding Americans to travel in China and certain other lands. This, however, is to attack an effect and not a cause.

Until our American students and professors strike an echo among their fellows in Asia—and this is something which Mao Tsetung has no intention of allowing to happen—their efforts on behalf of peace will continue to be as useless as those of the young Englishmen of a generation ago.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Viet Nam War Lonely One for LBJ

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — War, no matter what the circumstances, is tragic business. However, the war in Viet Nam has become a lonely war and to some extent a personal war for one man.

This is not because the President began it. It began 18 years ago under the French, was picked up ten years ago by Eisenhower, and increased four years ago by Kennedy.

It's become personal today because the President feels it so keenly and directs it so carefully. Every morning at three he wakes up and calls the White House security room. Three in the morning is about the time the news is in from Viet Nam on the casualties and the hits after each bombing raid.

The President worries over these, broods over them, wants to know, no matter what the hour of the night, just what has happened. If a cabinet member or sub-cabinet member calls him at two or four in the morning, he doesn't complain. He has given instructions that they should call no matter what the hour.

One reason for this personal direction is that the President is worried over the possibility of enlarging the war. He knows how easy it is for bomber pilots to make a mistake, or how dangerous it can be to jettison their bombs on their way home.

On the usual wartime bombing raid, a mission will fly over a target, attempt to knock it out; but if the clouds are low or an enemy plane gives trouble, the bombers may drop their payload indiscriminately on the way back, regardless of military targets.

Targets of Concrete

Not, however, with the war in Viet Nam. Johnson has given strict orders that only the targets he picks out are to be hit—and these are bridges, ammunition dumps, railroad centers, and military installations.

"We're knocking out concrete," he has frequently told his aides. And he means it. At first he griped that the Air Force wasn't able to hit a bridge carrying supplies down from North Viet Nam. Smarter Air Force commanders replied that if they were planning the raid themselves they could knock the bridges. So they sent as many as 22 planes on some raids, literally peppering a bridge with a holocaust of bombs.

Subsequent photos showed that the bridge was knocked out all right, and the Army ripped the Air Force on using so many planes. But the President, who studies every aerial photograph, considered it important that no civilians were killed.

In addition to his care to avoid civilian casualties he is concerned over any bombing mission which might stray over the line into China, or give the communist Chinese the slightest provocation to enlarge the war.

This is why the war in and over Viet Nam has been a lonely war, a personal war directed by a man who goes to bed well after midnight, but wakes up automatically at 3 a.m. to check on the military targets he has personally pinpointed.

Under the constitution, he tells friends, he is charged with the conduct of war. But regardless of the constitution, he knows that if there are failures, or if the war spreads, he will get the blame. So he is taking the responsibility.

Insoluble Mess
When the President outlined his Baltimore peace proposals they were also personal, especially his plan for a giant series of dams on the Mekong River to benefit all the Indo-Chinese countries, including North Viet Nam.

Dams and reclamation projects are something very close to his heart, he having been the father of the Little Colorado project in Texas when a young congressman.

Johnson had hoped that this, coupled with his offer of unconditional peace talks, plus joint U.S.-U.S.S.R. aid, might induce the other side to sit down at the conference table. It didn't, for three reasons:

1. North Vietnamese have been winning. Our bombing raids have not stopped the supply of troops and supplies from going south or the guerrilla raids by the Viet Cong.

2. The Russians, who normally might have acted as intermediaries, were put on the spot by our bombing of the north. The Chinese have chided them with being too friendly to the United States in the past, and with forsaking their alleged former role as the champion of small nations. So it's difficult for them to side with the United States now.

3. The Chinese are delighted at the predicament of both Moscow and Washington. They don't want the Vietnamese war to end. The longer it lasts, the more the United States and Russia become at swords' points, and the more the smaller nations of Southeast Asia pull away from the United States into the Red Chinese camp.

In brief, the military advisers who sold the President on the strategy of bombing North Viet Nam failed to understand oriental politics. Though he inherited the Vietnamese problem, they sold him on enlarging it into a mess that could either lead to world war or is almost insoluble without serious loss of face.

GOP's Wrangles to Draw Battle Line

By WALTER R. MEARS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republicans, anything but united during the 1964 presidential campaign, still are wrangling among themselves as they seek a battle plan for the 1966 congressional elections.

Striving to write a record and point up issues they can aim at the Democrats next year, Republican leaders are planning a series of declarations that will spell out the GOP position.

In effect, they will overhaul the party platform adopted 11 months ago at a national convention dominated by conservative allies of Barry Goldwater.

The Republican Coordinating Committee, an outfit of party leaders including Goldwater, already has set in motion a study of major problems facing the nation.

And now, a leading House Republican says there also will be a declaration of GOP principles next year from the party's members of Congress, at least those on his side of the Capitol.

Rep. Melvin R. Laird of Wisconsin said it will seek the platform on top of changing issues as Republicans prepare for the 1966 congressional elections.

But there is fresh evidence of GOP disagreement, not only on issues but on how best to dramatize them.

One sample came when House Republicans decided to send four of their number to Paris to seek the reasons for trouble in the Atlantic Alliance.

That took Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen by surprise. He criticized the idea, saying foreign policy is President Johnson's affair. Later, Dirksen dropped his complaint and said he had no objection to a fact-finding mission.

Another turned up when Republicans in the House issued a report declaring they have introduced legislation to redeem 45 of the 50 pledges made in the 1964 platform.

Laird said the 140 House Republicans expect no major legislative victories, but are writing a record for 1966 with the bills they sponsor.

Rep. Ogden R. Reid of New York promptly took issue with the report, which was little more than a statistician's account of the number of the bills introduced by Republicans on subjects covered by the platform.

Speaking for himself and Rep. F. Bradford Morse of Massachusetts, Reid said he did not agree with parts of the platform, and took the same position on the report.

Reid said civil rights, aid to education and foreign affairs were three of the topics he had in mind.

Goldwater, often had said much the same thing, when liberal and moderate Republicans criticized his campaign views.

James Marlow, who usually writes this column, is on vacation.

Democrat Pick-ups

AN IRATE MOTHER reported her son was in the "dog house" and when friends asked what he had done she told that he had broken a $50 bill.

Mayme said: "Well he was given a fifty-dollar bill for graduation and if I had received one when I graduated I would have framed it." She did mention that was back a few years — in fact in 1932.

Asked why she was so irritated at her son, she replied: "He broke it to buy a hamburger. If he wanted a hamburger he could have gotten a quarter from me."

She was reminded that back when she graduated it was doubtful if there was a fifty-dollar bill in Sedalia, much less anywhere around these parts.

Asked if she recalled that a $5 bill then would be just about as big as the fifty is now, she replied: "I don't know, I didn't have a five-dollar bill in those days."

She ended her interview with: "But today it's too late. I had to give the quarter to the City Fathers for a parking ticket."

YOUR DENTAL HEALTH

Surgery for Jaw Cancer Can Be Very Successful

By William Lawrence, D.D.S.
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Cancer of the jaw sometimes necessitates surgical removal of a part of the jaw. The amount of bone and soft tissue removed depends on extent of the lesion and how deeply it has invaded surrounding areas.

The operative procedure is a delicate one, but when done in time, can be highly successful. The amount of success, though, depends not only on the operation but on post-operative recovery and later care. If a prosthesis (removable artificial appliance) is not planned in advance, disfigurement from removal of bone and formation of scar tissue can be a cosmetic and functional disappointment.

Before surgery is one, the patient is examined by surgeon and dentist and molds are made of upper and lower jaws. Using these jaw molds as a guide, the section of tissue to be removed is outlined and the artificial appliance is planned.

This appliance is then made in advance. It duplicates in size and shape the section to be removed, although it is made somewhat smaller in all dimensions. A few days after the operation, when surgical packing is removed, the prosthesis is put in place.

It is not only of cosmetic value, restoring the jaw to something like the original contours, but it's also a necessary aid in restoring basic functions as well. When a hemisection (removal of half) of the upper jaw is performed, patients have great difficulty swallowing and talking. A prosthesis allows them to do both with some ease.

This role in dentistry is most interesting, sometimes including artificial restoration of other parts of the anatomy too, i.e. ears, noses, etc. A recent undertaking was the reproduction of a complete female torso, which was being prepared for a medical school teaching project.

With model standing arms outstretched, an impression of the torso was made with the same material used in taking impressions of teeth. This material is so accurate it can even reproduce tiny skin pores. The impression was removed in sections and poured in plaster. A near perfect reproduction was made.

THE WELL CHILD

Normal Heartbeats Soothe the Newborn

By Wayne G. Brandstadt, M.D.
Newspaper Enterprise Association

There are only two things that cause fear in a newborn baby. One is being dropped, even though he lands on a soft mattress, and the other is a sudden, loud noise. By contrast the sound of normal human heartbeats is the most soothing "noise" in the world for an infant.

Dr. Lee Salk of New York exposed groups of newborn infants to recordings of heartbeats at the normal rate of 72 per minute and an accelerated rate of 128 per minute. Those exposed to the increased rate cried more than the others and were definitely more restless.

The babies exposed to a background of normal heart sounds gained more weight and since both groups got the same amount of food, this was attributed to the fact that they did not exhaust themselves with fussing and crying.

Dr. Salk then studied the length of time it took for four groups of babies to get to sleep. Lullabies were played continuously for one group. Strange as it may seem, they took the longest time — 49 minutes.

Another group went to sleep listening to a metronome set at 72 beats per minute. They took about the same length of time, in absolute quiet didn't do much better. It took them 46 minutes to go to sleep while those exposed to normal heart sounds made it in half the time — 23 minutes.

These findings are not presented to cause a stampede to purchase heart-sound recordings but rather to emphasize the fact that close association with the mother's body is of the utmost importance in the early weeks of life. Other factors beside normal heart sounds, such as warmth and contact, are important, too. This study by a prominent physician is a strong reason to advocate the rooming-in system instead of the old-fashioned hospital nursery.

Q — The doctors say my son, 7, has too much insulin. What is the best treatment for it?

A — Hyperinsulinism is relatively rare in children. Every effort must first be made to determine whether this condition is due to a disease of the kid. The group that went to sleep neys, pituitary, adrenals or liver. If the disease causes attacks of rapid heart, headache or vomiting, an injection of adrenalin or a cube of sugar by mouth may give some relief. It is helpful to give your son a light supper and to give him a diet that is high in proteins and low in carbohydrates (sugars and starches).

Rewards In Commanding Company of US Marines

By HAL BOYLE

A RICE PADDY IN VIET NAM (AP) — It is said that in wartime there is no higher glory or greater reward than being commander of a company of troops.

For a company is large enough to be important in battle but a kingdom small enough for the commander to know all his men personally.

That is the way Capt. Pat Collins, leader of recon Company D of the 3rd U.S. Marines, feels about his post.

He wouldn't trade it right now for any other job on earth.

He talked of it as he lay stretched out under a tent in a dried up rice paddy, loud with insect song.

The heat came down in an endless hammer of glare. Red and gold butterflies shimmered and skittered past and it was hard to think the enemy was only a couple of hills away.

Chewing on a stem of grass, Pat remarked:

"Once you put the average Marine out in the field his overall outlook on life generally improves. He has a sense of achievement. He feels he is doing what he ought to be doing."

"You don't join the Marines if you are looking for a soft, cushy life."

Pat has put in 13 years. After serving as a corporal in Korea, he quit to get a degree in industrial management from Bowling Green (Ohio) State University.

But he returned to the corps in 1958. Since then he has attended nine Marine, Army and Navy schools. He has won two medals for bravery, served in Cuba, made 100 parachute jumps and qualified as a demolition expert.

"I'm lucky in the men I have," he said. "They like the excitement of running around the countryside and shooting up the enemy."

"They're young and eager. They figure the government sent them here to do a job, and they will get it done."

Collins, who can put 20 shots a minute from his M14 rifle into a target 500 yards away, has both respect and disdain for the enemy.

"He knows the countryside, and is very deceptive and elusive," Pat said. "He is a master at concealment. He has a kind of circular foxhole in which the cover serves as his hat. He stands up, fires, then stoops and is hidden again."

"But they are lousy shots, real lousy. No guy could shoot that bad and stay in the Marines."

At 32, the captain is completely happy in a Spartan existence under which the meaning of his life is wrapped up by two words — dedication and duty.

"I don't sit around and dream of retiring to a chicken ranch," he said. "I think some people back home make themselves unhappy by being materialistic and selfish."

"I'm happy trying to do a job. It isn't really hard on us out here. I like it. The ones it is hard on are the wives."

Pat thinks often of his own wife, Mary, and their two small children, who live with her parents in the Bronx, New York City.

Collecting Big Business For Fort Scott Man, Wife

By RICHARD PEARL
The Fort Scott Tribune
For The Associated Press

FORT SCOTT, Kan. (AP) — Fancy yourself a collector? Then you'll be interested in what two Fort Scott residents have put together since World War II.

It's on display at the museum W. L. Summers and his wife, Mary Lona, opened in Fort Scott March 1.

Ever see a doll a third of an inch in height? Yes, a German doll, with a little dress on it, mounted on a pin attached to a block.

Or how about a Mary Todd doll — quite a bit larger — with a dress made of material from a blouse believed once owned by Abraham Lincoln's wife?

How about pistols and rifles? Such as muzzle-loading rifles dating back before the Civil War, or smaller-than-hand size derringers, or a set of Civil War handcuffs?

Or maybe you're interested in what retailers and manufacturers at the turn of the century gave their customers as advertising gifts.

If you're a collector of glass — dishes, vases and the like — you'll find Mr. and Mrs. Summers have many different kinds, colors and shapes of art glass.

These are just a few of the more than 50 different collections put on display by the couple.

For Mrs. Summers, collecting has been her big interest since she began collecting dolls, postcards and other items in her teens.

For Summers, it's a different story. He had been a cab driver, boxer and a host of other things before he met Mary, a native of Idaho, at the end of the war. The only thing he had collected was some old rifles — dating back to pre-Civil War times — which his grandfather had given him.

His grandfather had been a blacksmith in Charleston, Mo. — Summers is a native Missourian and was a childhood friend of Missouri Gov. Warren E. Hearnes — during the depression, and he took the guns as payment for his work from persons who had no money, Summers related.

Mr. and Mrs. Summers opened an antique shop in Colter, Ark., and their collecting grew.

In 1950 Summers, hauling some trash to a dump, found two small dolls, about five inches long, that someone had discarded. He gave them to Mrs. Summers, who decided she'd collect only dolls of up to nine inches in height.

By 1953 her collection of small dolls had grown to 400 to 500, most of which she dressed herself in the historical attire of the doll's time.

Then Summers traded off an old muzzle-loading gun for a doll that stood about 42 inches tall. He gave it to his wife on her birthday, and that did it — her doll collection now numbers about 1,200.

Mr. and Mrs. Summers moved to Fort Scott in 1956 after selling their antique shop to a concern that wanted to build a supermarket on the site.

Summers says he and his wife owe their success to relatives, because much that's on display came from them.

"When either of our birthdays come up, or Christmas rolls around, they give us items for the museum as gifts," he said.

None of the items in the museum is for sale. What is for sale is in the back of the museum, in the antique shops the Summerses also operate.

England Bank Rate Cut To Six Per Cent

LONDON (AP)—The Bank of England rate, which sets the pattern for interest charges in the sterling bloc, was cut today from 7 to 6 per cent.

The 7 per cent rate had been in effect since Nov. 23, when the Labor government jumped it from 5 per cent in an attempt to bolster the pound sterling by encouraging the investment of foreign funds in Britain.

However, the high rate damped down borrowing for business expansion and housing mortgages. The government had been anxious to reduce it as soon as possible.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actress Hedy Lamarr, 50, has been granted a divorce from her sixth husband, Lewis W. Boies Jr., a 44-year-old attorney she married March 4, 1963. He did not contest the action.

Superior Court Judge Roger Alton Pfaff approved a property settlement Wednesday under which Boies is to pay Miss Lamarr half his gross income for two years, or a minimum of $1,250 monthly for the period.

Miss Lamarr testified that her marriage to Boies caused her to lose $500,000 and 20 pounds in weight. She said Boies had once threatened her with a baseball bat and, on another occasion, threw a table at her.

Accidents In Sedalia Show Decrease In '65

Motor vehicle accidents on city streets and resulting injuries are down for the first five months of the year in comparison to the same period of 1964.

Accident statistics compiled by Police Officer Clarence R. Harrell show 286 mishaps to date, 82 injuries, and three fatalities. In addition one bicycle mishap resulted in one injury.

At this time in 1964 there were 325 accidents which had caused 111 injuries.

May of this year showed an increase in accidents, however, over last year.

The Police Department logged 52 accidents during the month and 24 injuries — up from 55 and 14, respectively, for May, 1964.

Tom Rolfe, Dapper Dan To Renew An Old Rivalry

NEW YORK (AP) — Tom Rolfe and Dapper Dan, who made a family affair of the Preakness three weeks ago with a torrid duel over the final yards, renew their rivalry Saturday at Aqueduct in the $125,000-added Belmont Stakes, with Hall to All and four so-so performers seeking to break up the monopoly.

Both Tom Rolfe, a midget alongside most thoroughbreds, and Dapper Dan, who strikes terror in his rivals with his home-stretch charges, were sired by the unbeaten Italian stallion—Ribot. They are owned by first cousins—Tom Rolfe by Raymond Guest, U. S. ambassador to Ireland, and Dapper Dan by Ogden Phipps.

Dapper Dan and Tom Rolfe first hooked up in the Kentucky Derby May 1. Dapper Dan staged his patented finish but failed by a neck to catch Lucky Debonair, with Tom Rolfe two lengths back in third place.

Two weeks later they met in the Preakness. This time Tom Rolfe took the lead midway of

Another Showdown For Myers

Sonny Myers

Sonny Myers and wrestling's massive Stomper will engage in another bruising showdown at Convention Hall Tuesday night (June 8).

Myers, a stylish Missouri brawler whose use of the Japanese sleeper hold has vaulted him to national ranking in pro wrestling, and the Stomper have been immersed in a bitter feud these last few weeks. It came to a head in a jolting, free-swinging "fence match" last week that proved unsatisfactory to both parties.

Myers is prepared for another all-out effort and will pit his speed and ring skill against the 255-pounder's power-gear attack. The Stomper only recently returned to the Midlands wrestling scene and is trying to regain the once lofty status he once enjoyed.

A tag team match Tuesday will mark the return of another classic Missouri wrestler—Ronnie Etchison. The 235-pound St. Joseph pro will side with versatile newcomer Jerry Miller as the two oppose veterans Bob Geigel and Dutch Savage.

Etchison is proficient with all mat holds, but is particularly adept with the giant swing and backbreaker. Miller brings an impressive list of credentials in the Mo-Kan area and will be trying to break the hold of the top few active in this section.

Separate pairings Tuesday send Etchison against Geigel, Miller against Savage.

the home stretch and went all out to hold off Dapper Dan's surging drive by a neck. Lucky Debonair wound up far back because of leg injuries.

Since then the supporters of Dapper Dan have claimed all he needs is a longer distance. He gets it in the 1½ miles of the Belmont, a race that is one-quarter mile longer than the Derby and five-sixteenths of a mile longer than the Preakness.

Post time is 4:15 p. m. EST. The race will be nationally televised by the Columbia Broadcasting System from 4:40 p. m. EST and carried on radio from 4:10-4:30.

Only Mrs. Ben Cohen's Hail to All, who like Dapper Dan prefers to race far back in the early going and then turn on his blazing speed in the closing yards, is expected to offer the favored pair any serious argument.

When the entry box closed this morning, the field was expected to be completed by Bold Bidder from Mrs. H. C. Phipps' Wheatley Stable, Selari from Lawrence Katz's Valley Farms, J. R. Straus' lightly raced La Cima and First Family from the Meade Stable of C. T. Chenery. With seven starters, the race will be worth $146,650 with $102,900 earmarked for the winner.

Some Streams Muddy

State Lakes In Good Condition

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Most lakes and streams are in good condition for fishing, the Conservation Commission reported today, but some central Missouri streams are high and muddy because of heavy rains. Success should range from fair to good for weekend anglers. Conditions by region:

Northwest—Rivers muddy to clear with catfish hitting well; lakes and ponds full and black bass hitting well.

North Central—Rivers high and muddy but productive for channel cats; ponds murky with success poor to fair.

Northeast—Upper Mississippi clearing and success fair to good for crappie and drum; inland rivers clear and success good on black bass, channels and white bass.

West central—Upper Osage muddy but producing fairly well on drum, channels and carp; upper Pomme de Terre muddy, lower portion clear and producing well on all species. Other rivers murky but providing fair strings of bass and rough fish.

Central—Lower Osage dingy with crappie and channels hitting fair to good; other rivers dingy to muddy with success expected to be fair by weekend.

East central—Rivers dingy to clearing with success fair.

Southeast—Rivers in good condition with success fair to good on black bass and panfish.

Ozark—Rivers clear with black bass and goggle-eye hitting fairly well, trout on the Eleven Point good.

Ervin Leads Bret Hanover To Victory

DETROIT (AP) — Unbeaten Bret Hanover paced off victory No. 28 at the Wolverine Raceway Thursday night, matching the all-time mark set by Torpid in 1957 and taking the $21,434 Matron Stake.

Driver Frank Ervin opened up in the stretch and covered the mile in 2:02.4-5, fastest of the season here before a turnout of 6,000.

Richard Downing's 3-year-old pacer from Shaker Heights, Ohio, was six lengths ahead of runner-up Adican at the wire.

Dropped Pirates 8-6

Mets Have Longest String Of Wins In NL; Tied Once

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer
Who's got the longest winning streak in the National League? Why, the New York Mets, winners of 3½ games in a row. The Mets, unbeaten in four games including a tie with the Chicago Cubs last Monday, replaced Pittsburgh as the team with the longest current winning streak by knocking off the Pirates 8-6 Thursday night and ending their string of successes at 12.

But it was that kind of night. Sandy Koufax started for the Los Angeles Dodgers and wound up one of nine shell-shocked pitchers as the Dodgers finally whipped St. Louis 11-10 and boosted their first-place edge to five games—longest of the season.

Meanwhile, hardly anyone was looking as the Milwaukee Braves crept into second place, downing San Francisco 10-3 despite being held hitless after the third inning.

In the only other game scheduled, Houston defeated Cincinnati 8-3.

At Pittsburgh, the Mets would have added 10 years to Casey Stengel's age if he weren't already 74.

They scored two runs in the third inning, then exploded for six more in the fourth as Ed Kranepool and Joe Christopher each drove in a pair. With an 8-0 lead it looked easy, and it was until the eighth inning when Galen Cisco started to play ricochet with the Pirate bats.

Roberto Clemente tripled. Willie Stargell homered. Exit Cisco. Enter Larry Miller. Three singles, another run, another Met pitcher, Tom Parsons. Parsons held Jim Paggiaroni to a sacrifice fly and Jerry Lynch to a two-run homer, the 17th pinch-hit shot of his career. Parsons got out of the 6-run inning and then retired the side 1-2-3 in the ninth.

Koufax never got past the third inning at St. Louis as the Cardinals pulled out to a 7-3 lead. But there were a few hits still to come. There were 29 in all, 15 by the Dodgers.

After four innings the score was tied 7-7, but the Cardinals pulled ahead in the fifth when Bob Skinner smacked a pinch-hit two-run homer and Julian Javier followed with his first homer of the season.

Then it was the Dodgers turn again. They scored one in the seventh and pulled out front to stay in the eighth when pinch hitter Wes Parker doubled and scored on Jim Gilliam's single before Ron Fairly put the finishing touches on with a two-run homer off the right-field roof.

The Braves jammed all their hits and runs into the first three innings, erupting for nine runs in the third—the biggest inning in the majors this season.

Bob Shaw was the victim of the uprising as winning pitcher Ken Johnson, Mack Jones and Eddie Mathews each drove in two runs in the inning. Mathews did his damage with a two-run homer—the 10th and last hit for the Braves, handcuffed the rest of the way by Bill Hands and Bob Bolin.

Things were a little more routine at Cincinnati, where Rusty Staub drove in four runs for the Astros with a homer and a sacrifice fly.

Don Nottebart got the victory with relief help from Hal Woodeshick, who came on after Deron Johnson hit a homer for the Reds in the ninth. Woodeshick ended it by getting Tommy Harper to hit into a double play.

Come in and go for a test walk.

That's a Volkswagen Station Wagon, with an aisle like a real bus.

You can walk between the front two seats, past the middle seats, to the back seats.

Without stopping or opening doors.

And if you take trips with children, it makes a big difference. In fact, the longer the trip, the bigger the difference.

You'll be able to get to things you couldn't get to before.

Not only the kids, but anything else you happen to have along.

Even to the 16 pieces of luggage behind the back seat.

Our high roof makes it all possible. (Ordinary, low-roof wagons couldn't even consider an aisle, never mind a flock of people and 16 suitcases!)

Of course, to get on aisle you have to give up something.

Instead of the usual 7 seats, you get 7.

Only Volkswagen offers this optional minus at extra cost.

Anatomy Of Battle

Carefully Prepared Cong Ambush Claims Over 200

EDITOR'S NOTE — A reinforced Viet Cong regiment last weekend staged the largest Red offensive in South Viet Nam's 1st Corps area since the French-Indochinese war. Thanks to U.S. air power and fighting Vietnamese units, the Communists failed in their drive to cut through to the sea. Government troops suffered high casualties but still held the field. AP Correspondent John T. Wheeler was there. Here is his report.

By JOHN T. WHEELER

BA GIA, South Viet Nam (AP) — The Vietnamese troops joked casually among themselves as they set out last Saturday for a road security patrol toward the town of Quang Ngai six miles away. An hour later most of them were dead in the opening battle for Quang Ngai, one of the bloodiest of the Vietnamese war.

Nearly 200 government troops were killed and more than 200 were wounded. Many were still missing days after the battle. The Viet Cong suffered about 600 casualties by American count.

The carefree company of the 51st Regiment's 1st Battalion was swinging down the road when a hail of fire broke across it. At the same time a second

Astronauts May Come Back With Beards; No Razors

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Space pioneers Edward H. White II and James A. McDivitt could come back from their four-day space journey looking like a pair of Western pioneers. There are no razors aboard the Gemini 4, and when the two spacemen splash down in the Atlantic Ocean Monday they may have a bad case of five o'clock shadow.

"Hair is no problem," Dr. W. W. Kemmerer Jr., head of the Manned Spacecraft Center's microbiology division said. "We can't see the added weight a razor would place on the spacecraft."

To keep hands and face clean, small wet tabs placed in special plastic containers are available for use after each meal.

HEADS STATE HEALTH DIVISION—Dr. L. M. Garner, 58, of Jefferson City, has been appointed acting director of the State Health Division by Gov. Warren E. Hearnes. A veteran of 34 years of service with the division, Dr. Garner formerly served as public health officer in Miller county, Greene County, and Poplar Bluff and Higginsville. (AP Photo) company of the same battalion was hit at a security post farther down the road.

Lead elements of a Viet Cong reinforced regiment had struck. The outnumbered government troops sent a desperate call to the Ba Gia outpost for help. A third company was dispatched quickly. It also was ground up in fire from carefully prepared ambush sites.

Three Americans with the battalion managed to slip into a cane field. They reached safety one day later.

The final Vietnamese company that started to the rescue also was hit by the Viet Cong and retreated to Ba Gia. They withstood nine attacks in the next few hours.

In Quang Ngai, capital of Quang Ngai Province, frantic radio calls sent government and American officers into action. They knew that an expected Viet Cong push was under way.

One battalion was already wiped out.

The 39th Rangers, the 3rd Vietnamese Marine Battalion and the 2nd Battalion of the 51st Regiment launched a counter-offensive Sunday.

As troops pushed from Quang Ngai toward Ba Gia, heavy rain clouds hung overhead, preventing U.S. jets and Vietnamese Skyraiders from giving fully effective air cover.

Late in the afternoon the Viet Cong hit, surrounding the marines and rangers. A U.S. adviser, Capt. Christopher J. O'Sullivan, 28, of Astoria, N.Y., was killed in the opening volley.

The fighting raged all Sunday night. The rangers were cut into three segments by repeated attacks. A second American, Marine Sgt. Willie D. Tryone, 33, of Abilene, Tex., was hit, but continued to fight.

In four assaults the main ranger group, including the U.S. Marine, captured a hill three miles east of Ba Gia. There they dug in.

Powerful Viet Cong units attacked the hill and overwhelmed the rangers.

Tyone was dead. In his final radio call to headquarters in Quang Ngai he reported: "Our position is being overrun."

Minutes later the guns fell silent.

Vietnamese marines who survived the attack sat in a ditch, tending some 60 wounded.

On their flank, 80 rangers remained alive.

American jets, despite dangerously low clouds, smashed at the Viet Cong. They probably were the key factor in blunting the Communist attack. At least the air raids gave government forces time to regroup and reinforce. And by that time the Viet Cong offensive was through and Communist troops began pulling away.

Many of the slain rangers appeared to have been killed in cold blood after being wounded, a practice followed at times by both sides.

Captured documents showed the Viet Cong planned to take Quang Ngai town after smashing as many government battalions as possible. They never reached the town.

Both Vietnamese and American senior officers believe that, since government troops outnumber the Viet Cong by a substantial margin, the enemy was hurt far more than the government by the Ba Gia casualties.

Beatle Haircut Going Out; Just Too Common

NEW YORK (AP) — A note for cringing parents and graying school principals: it looks as though the phenomenon known as the Beatle haircut may be on its way out.

An Associated Press survey showed today that long, stringy hair is going the way of all fads and, in this case, is winding up on barber shop or home bathroom floors.

The reasons are as numerous as the number of heads that once wore long hair. A teenager in Phoenix, Ariz., said it's just too hot.

"And there are too many singing groups like the Beatles now," he said. "It's no novelty."

An inspection of schoolboy styles around Dallas, Texas, showed the new long-hairs never had an influence there, even with the scores of boys who play in Beatle-type combos.

"The long-hair style is very much on the decline since the Beatles have quieted down and are staying away from this country," said Bill Evans, vice principal at Westport High School in Kansas City. He attributes the about-face to physical education instructors who insist athletes be shorn.

In Florida, there's a basketball team captain, Mike Chase, who must agree. Last December, Miami-Dade Junior College Coach Bill Alheim benched Chase for looking like a refugee from a mop shop, and Miami-Dade lost its next game without Chase who had been averaging 24 points per contest.

However, the survey showed that in some Florida areas the long-hair fad still persists. Another shaggy top region is Southern California where surfers and entertainers go for the style. There, something new has been added: bleached long hair.

But the barbers aren't feeling sorry for themselves.

Three Kansas City barbers say the fad is dying. Norman Moss, an Atlanta barber and chairman of the board of the Georgia Professional Barbers' Association, said a lot of youngsters now want their hair long only in front.

"It hasn't been bad for business," he said. "They still visit their barbers."

Will See Both Sons Graduate

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — Weather permitting, Mrs. Raymond W. Vogel Jr. will see two of her sons graduate next Wednesday in separate ceremonies at the military and naval academies.

"Everybody kept saying, 'no, no, no, it can't be done,'" Mrs. Vogel, of Arlington, Va., says. "But I don't believe anything is impossible."

So after five months of determined effort, she has arranged for Timothy J. Vogel to receive his diploma in an early morning ceremony at West Point, N.Y.

This will give her time to fly to Annapolis for the 11 a.m. exercises where her youngest son, Frederick J. Vogel, will be graduated.

Also making the trip will be Rear Adm. and Mrs. Frederick James Brush, also of Arlington, who have sons graduating from both service academies. Brush is assistant chief of naval operations for logistics.

He is assigned to the Pentagon, where Mrs. Vogel works in the Office of Naval Intelligence.

At least one other couple, Mr. and Mrs. H. Reed Laughlin of Port Huron, Mich., solved the same problem by having each parent attend one ceremony.

Cadet Frederick L. Laughlin will be commissioned an Army lieutenant. Midshipman Gary R. Laughlin will become a Navy ensign.

Mrs. Vogel, whose husband was a naval commander killed in action in the Korean War, began last January to try to find a way to attend graduation at both schools, which have ceremonies the same morning each year.

Unable to persuade either to change the time, she came up

The Rev. J. Eldon Johnson of Corpus Christi, Texas, son of the groom, performed the ceremony.

Day And Night Job

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The Albany Times-Union received a telephone call Thursday night from a man who asked if astronauts James A. McDivitt and Edward H. White II were to remain aloft for four days.

Assured that this was correct, the anonymous caller asked: "Yeah, well what I want to know is, are they going to stay up their at night too?"

with the idea of a special ceremony at one school. As a result, Cadet Vogel and Cadet William J. Brush will be awarded diplomas early Wednesday morning at West Point.

Now Mrs. Vogel is hoping for good flying weather.

"It would be just heartbreaking not to see both of them graduate," she says.

Auto production has set a monthly record for six straight months. The spurt of sales and output in the opening months of the year at the time had been thought due largely to shortages caused by last fall's strikes.

But figures for May show that Americans are still buying cars at a great rate, setting a record for that month.

Assemblies in May rose to 837,168 cars, or 15 per cent higher than the previous record for May, set last year. The first five months of 1965 saw 4,259,628 cars produced, compared with 3,654,697 in the like period of 1964.

Auto industry confidence rides high. June assemblies are expected to rise to 902,000 cars, or 16 per cent more than a year earlier. This would make the second quarter output of around 2,600,000 cars higher even than

Nervous Market Twitches Not Affecting Business

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst
NEW YORK (AP)—Business health continues apparently unshaken by disputes over monetary policies or government guidelines for the behavior of industry and labor unions.

Judged by the latest flow of statistics, business confidence seems little affected even by nervous twitches in the stock market over international trouble spots or comparisons of today's prosperity with the 1929 boom and bust.

Key industries report sales still strong, some records being set in production, and a steady flow of new orders that promise busy months ahead.

Autos and steel, the two segments where an early summer lull had been most feared, have entered June at record, or near-record, speed.

Steel output has climbed for two straight weeks. The latest weekly tonnage is 2,727,000, just 79,000 tons below the record poured in the week ended April 24. The drop from that record in the first three weeks of May appears to have been due as much to repair work at overstrained mills as to any easing of demand.

Most mills report orders on the books will keep them going near top speed through June and July. Any inclination of steel users to live off built-up inventories may have been postponed till after the strike deadline of Sept. 1, or until a wage pact settlement is reached.

the first quarter which many had forecast would be the high for 1965 model production.

The fast pace continues in many other industries.

New orders for all U.S. factories rose to a record in April of $41.2 billion, up a half-billion from the previous record set in March.

Business puts special emphasis on new orders because they indicate activity in the weeks and months ahead, as distinguished from production figures

Coinage Change Needed

Elimination Of Silver In Coins

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson recommended Thursday the most drastic change in U. S. coinage since the first mint was established in 1792; the virtual elimination of silver in coins.

A combination of nickel and copper would be substituted for silver in dimes and quarters and the amount of silver in half-dollars would be reduced from 90 per cent to 40 per cent. Pennies and nickels, which contain no silver, and the silver dollar, which has not been minted in 30 years, would remain unchanged.

Johnson asked for the legislation at this session of Congress, and officials said immediate action by Congress would permit general circulation of the new coins early next year.

There would be little change in the appearance of the half-dollar. The new dimes and quarters would resemble a nickel in surface appearance but would be unchanged in size.

Johnson said the change was dictated by a worldwide shortage of silver.

There also has been a tight supply of coins in the United States for several years, due in part to hoarding of silver coins by speculators who had been counting on an increase in the government - pegged price of $1.29 an ounce for silver.

The Treasury has a large measure of control over the market since it is the world's largest user of silver and it also holds the largest stockpile — about one billion troy ounces.

The new legislation would permit the Treasury to keep the silver price within a range of $1.25 to $1.29 an ounce.

The core of the new dimes and quarters would be composed of pure copper sandwiched between two layers of cupronickel — the combination of nickel and copper of which the nickel coin is composed.

The major consideration in selection of the "layered" or "clad" coin is that its electrical properties would permit its use in the nation's 12 million vending machines.

Johnson said: "Silver is becoming too scarce for continued large scale use in coins. To maintain unchanged high silver coinage in the face of this stark reality would only invite a chronic growing scarcity of coins."

"Although we have a large stock of silver on hand we cannot continue indefinitely to make coins of a high silver content — in the required quantity — in the face of such an imbalance in the production of silver and the demand for it."

Contracts Awarded For Pettis Road Work

Judges of the Pettis County Court awarded contracts to two local firms Thursday morning for a total of $28,968.05 in maintenance projects on the county's CART program roads.

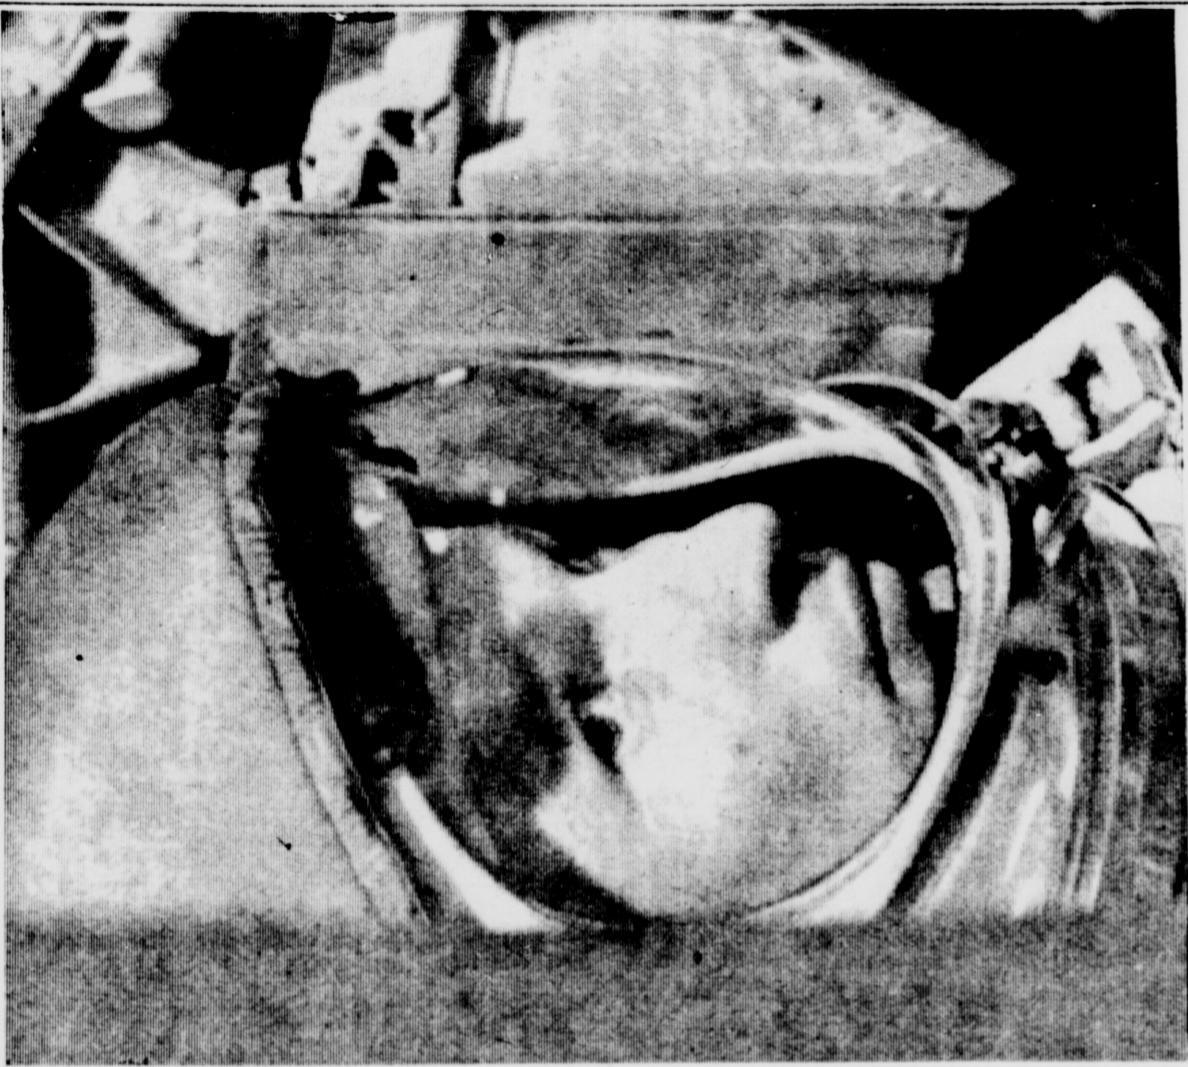

The Howard Construction Co., was the successful bidder on 10 projects totalling $16,203.50 for crushed rock and asphalt road work.

Bishop & Lane Construction was the low bidder on 12 projects for $12,764.55 worth of crushed rock for gravel roads. Crushed rock prices on the projects ranged from 89 cents per ton to $1.53.

Presiding Judge C. Berry Elliott and associate judges, E. L. Birdsong and C. M. Purchase, opened the bids Tuesday at 10 a.m. and took them under advisement until today.

Suffer Setback Near Saigon

Viet Cong Detachments Kill About 70 Soldiers

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Viet Cong detachments killed about 70 government soldiers in two ambushes in the central highlands Thursday. A Red battalion attacked Binh Chanh, only 10 miles southwest of Saigon, but was driven off by six U.S. armed helicopters.

Government troops pressed an operation in the Bac Lieu area, 120 miles southwest of Saigon. A U.S. spokesman said they estimated they killed 40 guerrillas. No casualties were reported among the soldiers.

Warplanes struck hard at Communist targets both north and south of the border. "Round-the-clock missions of U.S. Navy and Air Force squadrons against North Viet Nam made it one of the heaviest days of raids in recent weeks. Barracks, bridges and trucks drew fire."

U.S. and Vietnamese planes joined for the fifth consecutive day in bombing and strafing Viet Cong positions in the area of Quang Ngai, 320 miles northeast of Saigon, the scene of heavy fighting last weekend.

Up the coast a scout plane carrying two U.S. Marine fliers crashed and burned nine miles northwest of Da Nang and sources at the scene said both men were killed. That brought American deaths from all causes in the Vietnamese war to 566.

A spokesman said the pilot apparently lost control in flying through a cloud. A U.S. helicopter crashed in landing at the site and three crewmen were injured. Two Marines and 42 Vietnamese soldiers stood guard during the rescue.

In that same general area, a Viet Cong squad fired on a 32-man patrol of U.S. Marines near the Ca De Song River. A spokesman said 1st Lt. R. Taylor, Pueblo, Colo., killed two of the guerrillas and the six others fled.

Forty miles farther north in the Phu Bai area, a patrolling Marine platoon broke up a guerrilla attack with 81mm mortar fire.

Viet Cong ambushes were staged on a broad arc south-eastward from the Pleiku-Le Thanh sector, 220 miles north of Saigon, where Red strikes Tuesday killed two U.S. Army advisers and left 175 government troops dead or missing.

One of the biggest strikes in the air war was an attack by 36 U.S. Air Force bombers on Ben Quang, just north of the border. A spokesman said they destroyed 54 buildings in a 40-minute attack and left smoke and flames visible for more than 25 miles.

NAB Declares CATV A Threat To Broadcasting

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Association of Broadcasters said Thursday that Community Antenna Television (CATV) "is a threat to local broadcasting" and should be regulated by the Federal Communications Commission.

Vincent T. Wasilewski, NAB president, told the House Commerce Committee "the rate of increase in the number of CATV systems, their movement from fringe areas into areas served by multiple television signals, their imminent entry into our largest cities, demonstrate the urgent need for immediate action."

Wasilewski contended the commission now has authority to adopt reasonable regulations governing CATV operations, and added:

"Since the commission must gauge the effect of CATV on local stations and the public they serve, it must be able to regulate the facilities used to bring service to that public."

CATV systems set up big antennas to pick up TV signals in areas where reception is weak, and then pipe the signals into homes by wire at a price.

Wasilewski said Congress "should limit CATV operations to the receipt and simultaneous retransmission of off-the-air broadcast signals and that such systems not be used to originate program material of any kind."

Mixed Activity On Board Of Trade

CHICAGO (AP) — Trade factors in the grain futures market were of a minor character Thursday but the feed grains and soybeans were in light to moderate demand and finished in a firm range. Wheat eased slightly and rye slipped to season lows.

High Point Of Bold Adventure

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Astronaut Edward H. White II eased himself out of a Gemini capsule 135 miles above the earth Thursday and floated for 20 eerie minutes in the chilling void of space, chatting nonchalantly and darting about with a space gun.

The dramatic excursion clearly was the high point of a bold celestial adventure scheduled to last four days.

Another cosmic feat, a proposed rendezvous with another orbiting satellite, had to be scratched from the flight plan because of a lack of sufficient maneuvering fuel in the two-man capsule.

White's space twin, pilot James A. McDivitt, had hoped to be able to pull alongside the burned-out second stage of the mighty Titan 2 rocket which blasted the pair into orbit from Cape Kennedy, Fla., at 10:16 a.m. EST. President Johnson was among millions of Americans who watched the launch on television.

McDivitt followed the huge rocket booster to and fro in the heavens but soon used up too much fuel and had to give up the chase.

White's thrilling experience in the vastness of space, where even the stars refuse to twinkle, came during the third orbit, one later than planned, as he streaked at 17,500 miles an hour through the skies above his own homeland.

The feat doubled the time in space of cosmonaut Alexei Leonov who drifted for 10 minutes outside the Soviet Voskhod 2 space ship March 18.

The Russian maneuver was televised; the American was not. But Americans could hear the three-way conversation between White, McDivitt and ground controllers which was broadcast publicly as it happened. The Russians did not broadcast.

White had planned to step outside during the second orbit but the space twins reported they were simply too pressed for time to get ready.

"We'll do it next time around," McDivitt reported casually.

"That's okay with us," replied the mission director Christopher C. Kraft Jr., from the Houston Control Center.

Next time around White methodically prepared his special gear — gold-colored face plate, thermal gloves, emergency oxygen chest pack, golden tether, maneuvering gun shaped like bicycle handlebars with a camera attached.

He closed his sun visor and unlocked the hatch.

Gingerly he stood upon his contoured couch and poked his head through the hatch. Then, without effort in the weightless other world, he glided outside.

Glimping down to earth, he said to McDivitt: "Looks like we're coming up on the coast of California."

As he began darting here and there, propelling himself with his space gun, McDivitt said into the microphone: "One thing about it, when Ed gets out there and starts wiggling around it sure makes the spacecraft tough to control." In space there is no resisting friction and a man can move a 7,600-pound spacecraft with a mere nudge.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Communications Commission said Thursday it has received two more applications for the facilities of radio station KWK, St. Louis.

Space Sensations

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Cold and black, the empty reaches of space offer no real notion of distance — save for the numberless stars. The sun, like the heart of the flame from a welder's torch, glares with a blinding, searing white light.

Closer is the lonely quarter-moon, soft and small.

This is the strange new world of Edward Higgins White II, American astronaut, age 34, father of two children, a would-be human planet in orbit around the earth.

It is a world of fantastic dimension and unreal sensation. It is as if you had leaped into the air and never really came down again, lost in a perpetual fall around the earth.

Ahead of the spacecraft on a golden tether, you plummet together at some 17,500 miles per hour — and yet you feel no so much as a breath of breeze — for there is no air.

The sun stands out in the blackness as a great light bulb that seemingly spreads no light. It is only when the sun's rays strike a surface that the radiation is seen. There is no air to buffet and spread the light.

Below, you see the earth's blanket of air glowing with the sun's light, splitting the white light into the splatter of color as the world of men know it.

You feel the full brunt of the sun's radiation. You turn toward the sun and feel the immediate slap of heat at your face as the rays come through your visor. And you are thankful, too, that the visor is filtered to protect your eyes from the cruel light.

Behind you — gleaming on its sun-side — is the spacecraft and your command pilot keeping a careful eye on your movements. And you know that the sun-side of the craft is hot, some 200 degrees Fahrenheit, and the shade side is perhaps 200 degrees below zero.

And that is probably also the temperature variation of your suit exterior if you merely stood there and didn't move.

The earth stretches out like some hazy plain — painted in browns and golds and purples almost like colors you hadn't seen before. And perhaps through the haze you see the long peninsula of Florida stretching into the blue Atlantic.

But it is a free and wonderful feeling — and you have an unhappy thought that you must be an awkward creature in this

Ahead of you, too, is the booster rocket that brought you to this place — its ends jagged and burned by the blast of flame and explosion. It tumbles slowly in an unreal way like a patrolman's twirling nightstick in slow motion.

You remember to take care and not pull too hard on your tether line, because in this weightless arena, you know the only laws that hold are that any action has its equal and opposite reaction. Strike an object to

Water Supply Triples Need

Sedalia's Water Department heads into the high-consumption summer months with a water production capability estimated at three times the average daily use — and with increased storage facilities brought about through the completion of a new million-gallon tank at the filtration plant south of town.

Figures presented by department manager Herb Taylor at the Board of Public Works monthly meeting Wednesday night showed an average gallon-per-day production capability of 6,216,575 gallons. With only one 20-inch main into the city, the department is able to pump approximately 6 million gallons per day to Sedalia consumers.

Average daily consumption, however, is 2,100,000 gallon per day, Taylor said.

Capacity of five deep wells totals 4,665,600 gallons per day as follows: No. 11, 720,000 gal.; No. 7, 288,000 gal.; No. 9, 720,000 gal.; No. 12, 864,000 gal.; No. 13 (the newest and largest), 2,073,600 gal.

In addition, Taylor's report showed an average daily use from Springfork Lake of 1,152,000 gallons and 398,775 from Flat Creek. These figures were based on a 1/365 daily average of the total amount of water derived from Springfork Lake and Flat Creek during the past year, it was pointed out, and Springfork Lake would be capable of supplying more.

Water plant superintendent L. C. (Red) Heuerman told the board the department's new million-gallon storage tank was first put into service on May 19. Although adjustments and tests of control equipment are still being made.

Capacity of the new storage tank matches that of the elevated tank on East Main Street and will allow the department to abandon an old underground 600,000 gallon tank at the filtration plant. The underground tank has been subject to seepage and flooding from Flat Creek.

Board members Paul Hedderich, F. G. Knerl, Melvin Jones and William Bunn also heard a report of the department's annual audit completed recently by Haskins & Sells, certified public accountants of Kansas City.

Board members expressed high satisfaction with the auditor's report.

"We feel the department is in good financial condition," chairman Hedderich commented, "and that we will be able to carry out projected improvements without a water rate increase."

The accounting firm's representative made only one recommendation in regard to the event of needs for an additional employee to assist in billing and collecting garbage service fees.

"We believe the present method of billing and accounting for the garbage service is effective," the auditors said. "However, when the need for an additional office employee arises or if billing requirements should change we suggest the board consider the advantages of a billing machine which will print more than one line and accumulate additional control totals."

Since November, 1964, the department has been collecting the residential $1 per month garbage fee enacted by the City Council. These funds are turned over to the city treasury monthly by the Water Department.

One portion of the auditor's report reflected a reduction in (Please turn to Page 4, Col. 3)

More Sacrifices for Liberty

And still they come—fresh names to be added to the long, long roll of those who have fallen in the service of their country.

We had thought, 20 years ago, to have made an end to it once and for all, even as 25 years before that men told themselves they had fought the war to end all wars.

But more names were still to come. The peace so dearly bought in 1945 was but a pause. A mere five years later and there were different battlefields and a different enemy. But the face of death was the same one known to those who had met him at Lexington, at Lundy's Lane, at Vera Cruz, Antietam and San Juan Hill, in Flanders and in Normandy.

We had thought, after Korea, to have made an end to it. The men of the West who had fought and died and held the line there had proved to those of the East that there was no more profit to be gained in nibbling at freedom's edge with "limited" war than in uncapping the nuclear holocaust that would destroy us all.

But more names were still to come,

for never-sleeping tyranny has many fields to prowl.

They began coming in from new battlefields with faraway names—Bien Ho, Da Nang. They come slowly still, but there are more names today than yesterday, and little hope of anything but more tomorrow than today.

Now, more recently, the names came from a battle place closer to home—the sun-and blood-drenched isle of Hispaniola. A handful only, thankfully, but the long, long roll is that much longer.

Today we suspend the public business to honor all the names, those lost to history as well as those still painfully fresh in memory. As Walt Mason wrote:

The little green tents where the soldiers sleep
And the sunbeams play and the women weep.

Are covered with flowers today.
And in the ghostly distance, the long, long file of those who have given up the peace and liberty that makes possible this day of Memorial Day goes on and on . . . and on.

Looking Backward

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Adams and four children, who have been living in Chicago, have returned to Sedalia to make their home and are at Mr. Adams' former home, 509 West Third street. He is a moving picture machine operator at the Uptown theatre.

Miss Jane Morey, librarian at the Sedalia Public Library, has resigned from that position to accept an appointment as secretary to the state library commission in Jefferson City. Miss Mary English is assistant librarian at the local library.

Era of 'Little Wars'

We are living in what, thanks to the absence of a shooting war between any major powers, automatically earns the title of peacetime.

But though the world is in no immediate danger of dying from a nuclear heart attack, it has broken out with a rash of measles, says Harlan Cleveland, assistant secretary of state for international organization affairs.

There are (or were, as of the time he spoke), 49 little wars, guerrilla campaigns and border disputes currently going on around the world.

One reason, he says, is the nuclear stalemate; war between the big powers has become unthinkable. Add to this situation the emergence of scores of new, independent nations in Asia and Africa and the spreading of the idea, which the United States has encouraged, that every country has the right to determine its own destiny.

With the fear of nuclear war inhibiting

ANDERSON (S.C.) INDEPENDENT: Broke But Not Broke Broke.—Like President Johnson, former President Harry Truman had to borrow to pay his income taxes this year.

"I always do," he told a sidewalk press conference in New York, "because I am always broke."

What these two gentlemen mean by "broke" is that they didn't have the ready cash handy.

That's not quite the same as those who have neither cash nor convertible resources. It's the difference between "broke" and broke broke.

Make Become Stickier

Even in a year filled with anniversaries, there should be space to note still another—the 75th anniversary of something dear to the hearts of countless children and adults: peanut butter.

Though the Incas knew of it, the art of making it was lost until 1890, reports the National Geographic Society. In that year, a St. Louis doctor ground up some nuts, added salt and gave the paste to his patients as a high-protein, easily digested food.

The rest is history. Today, kids and other people consume more than 200,000 tons of peanut butter every year.

Outside the United States, however, it is still usually considered a health food, sold in drug rather than grocery stores.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture hopes to change that. Peanut butter introduced at a food fair in Europe in 1963 was a great hit. The recent development of a peanut butter and jelly mixture in a spray can may make the international situation even stickier—in a pleasant way.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Slowdown Helps Mississippi Solons

(EDITORS NOTE: Drew Pearson's column is written today by his associate, Jack Anderson.)

JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — It looks as if speaker John McCormack's backstage slowdown to protect the Mississippi Congressmen from being unseated is already getting results.

Rita Schwerner, widow of one of the three freedom workers murdered at Philadelphia, Miss., found this out when she and other civil rights leaders called on Ralph Roberts, clerk of the House of Representatives, to ask when the report of the House Administration Committee on seating the Mississippians would be reported out. The amiable Mr. Roberts indicated that it would take many months.

"The 1947 Reorganization Act of the House requires that it be reported out by July 4," Mrs. Schwerner told him.

"Oh, we don't pay any attention to that," replied the affable clerk of the House.

"Have you had any other cases similar to this since the 1947 act was passed?" asked William Higgs, an attorney for the Mississippi Freedom Democratic party.

"Only one," replied Roberts after a little thought. "Usually these cases go on into the second session of Congress — if they ever come out of committee at all."

Obviously he was in no hurry to have the House vote just after the Senate debated the Negro voting rights bill. It's on this question of Mississippi's refusal to permit Negroes to vote last November that the move has been made to unseat the Mississippi congressmen. Naturally delay is in their favor. The temper of Congress right now, after the Selma beatings and the Klan trial for the murder of Mrs. Liuzzo, would be to unseat them.

More Delay

Mrs. Schwerner also asked Roberts to set a date for a confrontation with ex-governor James Coleman of Mississippi, who represents the Mississippi congressmen. Roberts said Coleman couldn't come to Washington for two weeks.

Higgs pressed for an early hearing, but Roberts said he himself had to go out to Indiana to receive an award from his home town high school.

"I may stay out in Indiana a little longer than just a day or two," Roberts stalled. "Furthermore the record may not be printed in time."

"How long will it take to print the record?" Roberts was asked.

"Oh, perhaps two or three months," the clerk replied.

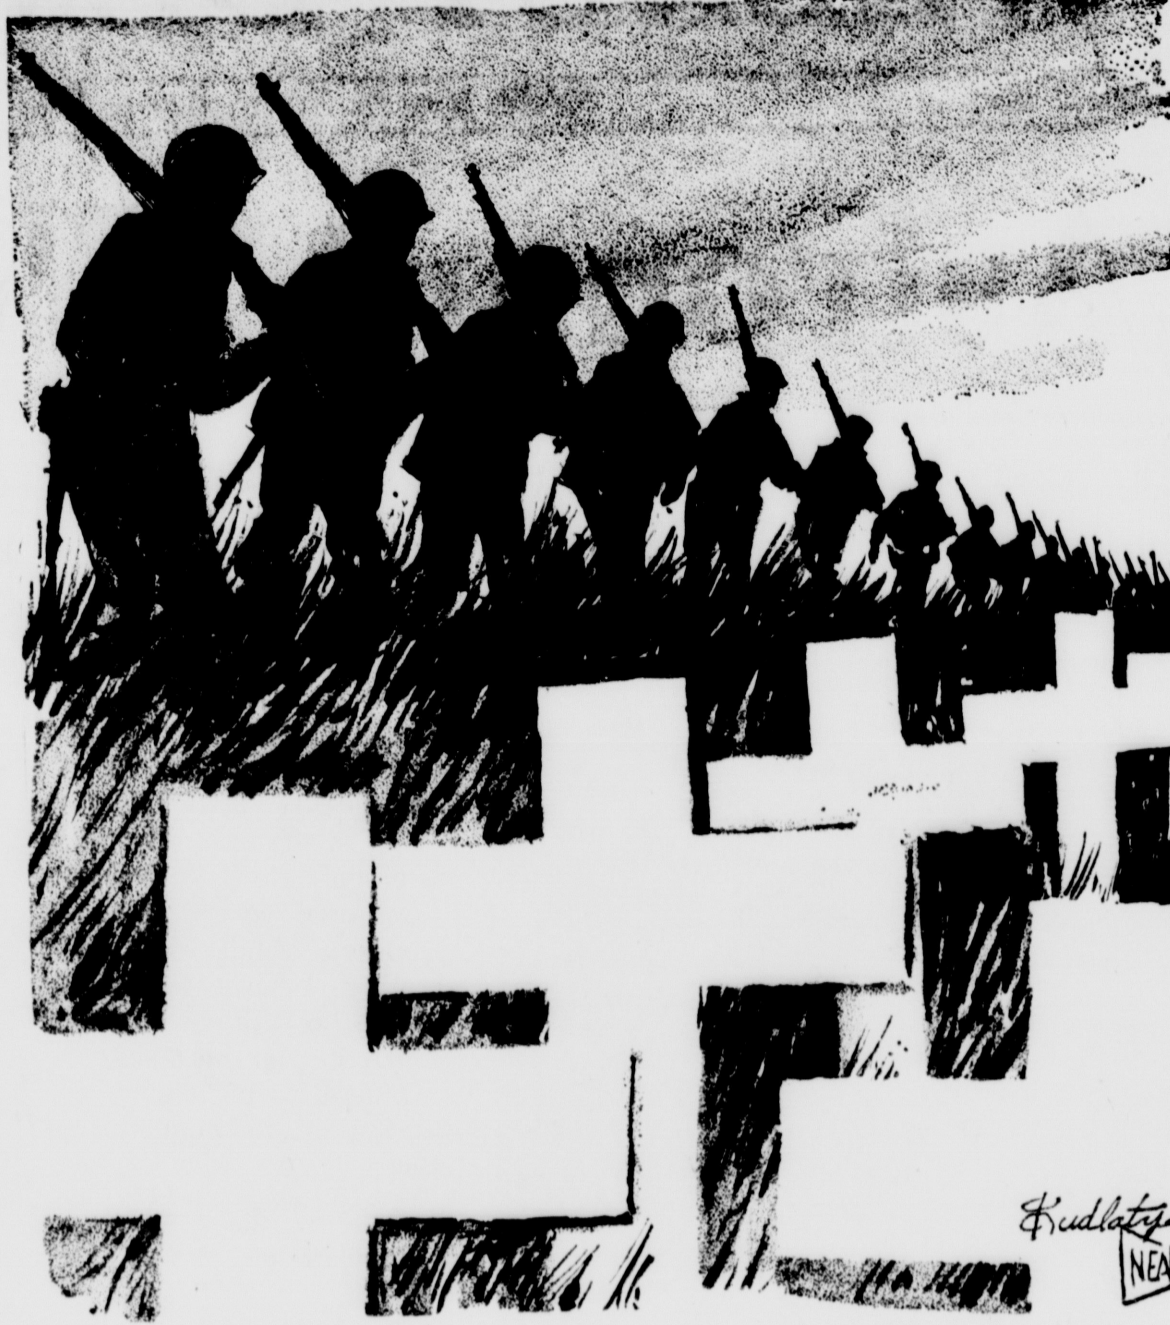

"The House Judiciary Committee had its 1300-page report on the Voting Rights Bill printed over the weekend," Higgs reminded Roberts. "Our affidavits aren't much longer than that. The Government printing office can turn this out in no time at all."

However, the man who runs the red tape machinery in the House of Representatives continued to stall. He is answerable to Speaker John McCormack.

Merry-Go-Round

American officials recently seized upon a picture of Col. Francisco Caamaño Deno, the Dominican rebel leader, with a clenched fist as evidence of his alleged pro-Communist leanings. Then someone pointed out that the San Juan Star, the paper that first published the picture, also ran a photograph of President Johnson with a clenched fist in the same edition. . . . Government researchers have adapted the "Explosive puffing Process" used to make puffed wheat and puffed rice to produce other food. They have been able to create instant blueberries, apples, carrots and beets.

Royal Story Retold

LONDON (AP) — He is 70 now. She is 68.

Sitting there in his red pajamas, his eyes bandaged after his second encounter with the surgeon's knife in a matter of months, he seemed a weakened old man.

Surely he was only a shadow of the dazzling Prince of Wales, the man who gave up the British crown to marry an American woman he loved.

But now they were in London, in a dimly lit hospital room, an aging Duke and Duchess of Windsor, and his niece, Queen Elizabeth II of England, wearer of the crown that once was his. They talked for perhaps half an hour — but it was more than the visit of the queen to a sick relative. For the duchess, it was the first time she had seen the queen in person since Elizabeth was a story-book princess of the realm, aged 10.

This private, almost sad, confrontation at the London Clinic was officially announced in advance. To the people of Britain, it meant a public reconciliation was being effected, and the royal family wanted it known.

They still talk about that meeting, and they ask: "Does it mean an end to the long exile and a return to England for the Windsors?"

One thing that makes conjecture difficult is that no one knows what the Windsors really want. And few know how really deep the estrangement has been between them and Britain's reigning house.

Publicly, the break seemed total and neither the duke nor duchess has hidden some feeling of bitterness about it. But private contacts have always been kept.

No one knows what the three discussed at the clinic. Most likely the half-hour went on family gossip and talk of the duke's health.

The Windsors have no official standing in England. The duke's position as an abdicated king is unprecedented. The duchess is junior to all other duchesses in the land. Her husband's dukedom was the last created.

In the United States, in France she gets almost royal treatment. Models give her a curtsy at the Paris fashion shows. She is the center of attention at society functions. Limousines wait at her door. A household and secretarial staff attend to her personal needs and keep unwelcome visitors away.

The granting of royal status to the duchess, such as a permanent return of the Windsors to England, could result only from consultations between the queen and Labor's Prime Minister Harold Wilson. It is doubtful if either Labor or Conservative parties would raise strong objections.

How would the public react? Some of the older generation in Britain still resent the way the duke threw up his job as head of what was then still the world's greatest empire in order to marry a twice-divorced woman from Baltimore, Wallis Warfield Simpson. They see him still as failing in his duty.

But most people, after nearly 30 years, are prepared to let bygones be bygones. The duke's recent illness and surgery in the United States and at home has brought him much sympathy and goodwill, even from those who opposed him.

The youngsters of 1965 just don't care one way or another.

The question still unanswered is: Are the Windsors willing to come? For years they have made their home near Paris. To move at 70 is a big uprooting for

FINDING THE WAY

We Must Remember

BY RALPH W. LOEW, D.D.
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

WHAT SHALL PEOPLE REMEMBER?

No person can choose all of his experiences. Not even a hermit can do that. Yet we can choose how to live within those experiences.

We can choose our memories and we can use them. We remember the guilt, forgetting the forgiveness. We remember the sins, forgetting the grace that redeems. Memorial Day is for the right remembrance.

HOW SHALL PEOPLE REMEMBER?

The ceremonies are important. They remind us and keep the remembrance contemporary. Even a people at play can recall Valley Forge, Appomattox, Verdun, Dunkerque.

We are a poor people if we forget the struggles for freedom and allow dignity to be eroded. We have not found the use of memory if we shrink from our time in despair.

"If I forget Thee, let my right hand lose its cunning."

WHEN SHALL PEOPLE REMEMBER?

"Memory is the diary we carry about with us." The historian Toynbee said the only thing we learn from history is nothing. Remembrance is not just a sentimental pause until we go on heedlessly.

Real remembrance is daily growth. Remembrance is a cocoon that breaks open. It is the researcher recalling a thousand failures and giving us a new memory. It is the fighter for freedom recalling the struggles of another time as he works today. The finest recollection of the past is in the integrity of our present.

"Remember thy Creator in the days of thy youth." WHY SHALL PEOPLE REMEMBER?

It is too easy to live from moment to moment, drifting through life. A people remember because we live in today and not yesterday. This is the new century and the treasured old is become the tumultuous present.

"Man is challenged to participate in the sufferings of God at the hands of a godless world." That is a call to each of us. When we think of the cost, we remember the price of the freedom given to us.

"Surrounded then as we are by these ranks of witnesses, let us strip off everything that hinders us, as well as the sin that dogs our feet, and let us run the race that we have to run with patience, our eyes fixed upon Jesus, the Source and Goal of our faith."

Care Given Grave Brings Its Reward

OYSTER BAY, N.Y. (AP) — Year after year, Pierre Coré, 15, and his sister, Odile, 14, had taken care of the grave in France of President Theodore Roosevelt's son Quentin, who was killed in action during World War I.

Quentin Roosevelt was killed near Coulonges-en-Tardenois, where the Corés lived until a few years ago. Since they were young children and until they moved to Soissons-Aisne, Pierre and Odile had kept the grave free of weeds and full of flowers.

They did it, they said, because they wanted to show their appreciation for all that American troops had done for France in two world wars.

This Long Island community, where Theodore Roosevelt once resided, wanted to show its appreciation to Pierre and Odile.

So, the community raised $1,600 for expenses and brought the French teen-agers here for a three-month visit.

They arrived by plane Wednesday and will stay alternately with three families, including that of Principal Richard Nodell of Oyster Bay High School. Odile is currently staying with the Nodells, who have two children, Dorothy, 17, and Richard, 12.

"They're one of the loveliest pairs of youngsters I've ever come across," Nodell said today of his visitors. "They both have a terrific sense of humor."

One of their big thrills came Wednesday night when they got their first taste of an American hot dog at a barbecue at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Jones, where Odile will stay later.

A big Memorial Day weekend is in store for Pierre and Odile. Sunday they will place a wreath on the original headstone of Quentin Roosevelt's grave. The grave has been moved to a large military cemetery in France, but the headstone was brought to his father's home, now a national shrine at Sagamore Hill.

On Monday, Pierre and Odile will be the guests of honor at Oyster Bay's Memorial Day parade.

Vitamin Uses Linked To Other Deficiencies

By Wayne G. Brandstadt, M.D.
Newspaper Enterprise Association

Although vitamins have been known for more than 60 years, many people still think of them as a source of energy — which they are not.

They regulate growth and other vital body functions and without them serious deficiencies will develop. But energy is supplied only by carbohydrates, proteins and fats.

Vitamin A is found in milk, eggs, liver and yellow and leafy green vegetables. It is necessary for normal growth in children and at all ages for good vision, especially at night.

A deficiency of this vitamin is rare in the United States but excessive amounts can cause poisoning. This is found chiefly in persons who eat the liver of bears or seals.

Vitamin B is found in lean meat, dried yeast and whole grain cereals. Because it has been found to be composed of many parts it is now spoken of as the vitamin B complex. Since all of its parts are soluble in water it is easily eliminated from the body and massive doses will not cause poisoning. The complex includes thiamine (B-1), riboflavin (B-2), pyridoxine (B-6), cobalamin (B-12), folic acid, pantothenic acid, niacin and biotin.

Thiamine is necessary for the proper working of the heart and nervous system. A deficiency of this vitamin causes beriberi, a disease that is characterized by weakness and waterlogging.

Riboflavin is needed for healthy skin and it helps you tolerate bright light. A deficiency of this vitamin causes cracking of the skin, especially at the angles of the mouth, and pain in the eyes on exposure to light.

Pyridoxine is essential for healthy teeth, gums, blood vessels, red blood cells and nerves. A lack of this vitamin is never seen in adults but in infants it results in jumpiness and convulsions.

Cobalamin prevents pernicious anemia and is necessary for proper growth in children. It is valuable in the treatment of certain types of anemia.

Pantothenic acid is required for the body's synthesis of adrenal hormones and the production of antibodies against germs and viruses.

Niacin is necessary for the conversion of food to energy. Thus, although the vitamin furnishes no energy, you can go into a terrific slump without it. This is the vitamin that prevents pellagra. In doses that far exceed the body's needs it will reduce the blood cholesterol level.

Biotin is essential for the health of the skin, mucous membranes, red blood cells and blood vessels. No cases of deficiency of this vitamin have been reported.

Decoration Day

Yesterday's living in silent graves lie.

For some of them many a year has gone by.

The graves are forgotten, not even a stone.

Leaving a mound for a life now unknown.

Once there were gathered from gardens bright flowers

And with loving hands placed as today we place ours.

Flowers to remind all that buried here

Is someone we loved whose memory is dear.

For the Civil War dead was a day set aside

To decorate graves of soldiers who died

And the custom of flowers from the Civil War grew

To decorate graves of all loved ones, too.

So roses we gather of every bright shade,

Peonies, perennials—and bouquets are made

And placed in vases of just every kind.

With memories of other such days brought to mind;

To the first family grave, in sunshine or rain.

Spring blossoms are taken by those who remain.

The pots of geraniums, wreaths or sprays

Or flower filled boxes that will bloom for days.

Then one by one are added graves new

And those who are left bring flowers for them, too.

This is the custom until comes the day

The last of the family may be laid away.

And over the graveyards are graves that are bare

For there is no longer those left to care.

But feel not badly as on them you cast

A glance at their bareness, for their cycle has passed.

Our own ancestors graves lie all over the nation

Unthought of for years—with no decoration.

And as years come and go, someday 'twill be ours

That are just mounds unknown—without any flowers.

And it doesn't matter, for all those who trust

Know the souls have gone on—and the grave holds but dust.

Rodeo Group Readies Big June Event

Initial Run For Local Rodeo Firm

Largest Arena In State Built Here For Show

By PETE DANIELS

A large sum of money has been invested, programs have been printed, a queen has been named and construction is completed for one of the biggest sporting events to come to Sedalia in some time — and the show opens just 12 days from today.

June 11-13 will be the initial test run of the first annual Show-Me Rodeo, three miles west of Highway 65 on 32nd Street Road.

Frank Hotsenpiller, president of Show-Me Rodeo Corp., producers of the show, says their present investment approximates $10,000. That includes material for gates, chutes, fencing, bucking stock, actual production of the show, installation of lighting systems, prize money and so on.

Installation of lights alone cost about $4,000, Hotsenpiller said. The project now needs only the actual staging of the show, and arrangements for that have been completed. Entries are still coming in, with only a partial list available at present, he said.

The Show-Me Arena is located on the Arabian Horse Ranch of Dr. A. L. Lowe, who is co-producer of the rodeo. The arena itself measures 325 feet in length and 125 in width, making it one of the largest in the state.

On the western edge of the enclosure, eight bucking chutes, one roping chute and a bulldogging chute are ready for operation. Bleachers and concession stands are located at the south and north sides, while holding pens are on the east.

Besides all this, there are numerous holding pens in which stock is kept prior to actual events in the arena.

Show-Me, according to Hotsenpiller, is obtaining all its bucking stock from Floyd Rumford, rodeo stock contractor from Abbeville, Kan. Rumford, incidentally, got into the stock business some years ago by accident. He hit on the idea during a 13-week stay in the hospital following a tractor mishap, which almost cost him a leg.

One of the animals to appear here is Rumford's top bull, No. 51. Hotsenpiller recalls that he rode No. 51 at the Kansas City Jaycee Rodeo at Benjamin Stables in 1963, and took second place. Bulls are usually known by their brand number—not by names, as is the case with broncs.

There will be enough pomp and pageantry to satisfy everyone, with Karen Owens, 15, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Owens, 1913 West Broadway, leading the way as official rodeo queen. Karen has won the high point horsemanship trophy in Missouri two years running, and has shown horses in competition since she was seven.

FIRST QUEEN—Fifteen-year-old Karen Owens, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Owens, 1913 West Broadway, radiates happiness after being named official queen for the first annual production of Sedalia's own Show-Me Rodeo Corp., June 11-13. Karen was the choice since she has been showing top stock in competition since she was seven years old.

Karen will present trophy buckles and other awards to winners. She will lead the parade that'll open the rodeo show.

Performances on Friday and Saturday, June 11 and 12, begin at 8 p.m., with the final day's show starting at 2 in the afternoon. Events and the purse money offered are: saddle bronc riding, $100; bare back, $100; bull riding, $100; calf roping, $100; steer wrestling, $100; and barrel racing, $50. A $15 entry fee is obtained from each participant for all events, with the exception of barrel racing, for which the entry fee is $5.

Barrel racing usually is for the ladies. Three barrels are placed in the arena, and riders try to circumnavigate all three in the least time possible. "It gets wild at times," Hotsenpiller says.

On the face of it, Hotsenpiller said, $100 doesn't look like much of a purse. "But when you add $15 from about 30 contestants for each event, all of which goes to the purse, you come up with a really satisfying sum of money," he explained.

Hotsenpiller himself has ridden in numerous rodeos. Whether or not he will enter any events in this one remains to be seen. Right now, he expects he'll be too busy with supervisory and other chores to take part in active competition.

Making up the Show-Me Rodeo Corp., are: Hotsenpiller, president; Glen Banner, vice-president; Billy Moore, secretary-treasurer; Dr. Lowe, co-producer; Bill Hotsenpiller; Danny Lowe; Miles Evans and Curtis Pyles.

Talks On Space Research

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Space research and exploration is providing purpose for the next generation, the director of Cornell University's radiophysics and space research center said Wednesday.

Dr. Thomas Gold spoke to about 1,000 persons during the first day of the fifth annual conference on Peaceful Uses of Space. The conference ends Friday.

Dr. Gold said that research and exploration is a "noble outlet for the curiosity and restlessness of the human spirit." He predicted current research will be "common schoolboy knowledge" in the future.

Dr. Edward C. Welsh, executive secretary of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, said earlier that Russian space capabilities should not be underestimated.

Welsh also warned that the United States should "not expect our space program to proceed indefinitely without some tragedy involving our astronauts."

Dr. George Mueller, associate administrator of manned space flight for NASA, said at a news conference that a space stroll by a Russian cosmonaut did not influence a decision to have an American take a similar walk in space, scheduled for the second orbit of the Gemini flight set for June 3.

Another speaker predicted a global weather prediction system within nine years by the use of weather satellites.

FINISHING TOUCHES — Miles Evans and Glenn (Buck) Banner, vice-president of Show-Me Rodeo Corp., are shown putting up "arena wire" to prevent bucking stock getting past the arena's borders. The arena, 325 feet by 125 feet, is one of the largest in the area.

ROPED AND TIED—This is part of what spectators will find when they attend the first annual Show-Me Rodeo, west of Sedalia, June 11-13. Calf roping, demonstrated above, is one of six events featured at the rodeo, and offers a $100 purse plus every entry fee received, for the winner.

SITTING HIGH—Bill Hotsenpiller checks the arena from the bucking chutes at the newly constructed Show-Me Arena, three miles west of Highway 65 on 32nd Street Road. Construction on the site was completed this weekend.

CHECKING CHUTES—Frank Hotsenpiller, president of Show-Me Rodeo Corp. and relative Bill check the slide gates on the eight bucking chutes at the arena. The tall beams immediately behind the two men now support the stand for announcers, time keepers and other officials. The picture was taken prior to completion of the stand. The purpose of the slide gate, Hotsenpiller explained, is to hold animals prior to bucking events. The massive gates slide back on metal beams.

Magistrate Court

Sedalia Mayor L. L. Studer late Thursday evening received notification from the VUMORE Co., of Oklahoma City, Okla., one of the unsuccessful bidders for a CATV license here, that the firm had instructed a local attorney to withdraw its name from a lawsuit filed in Circuit Court here last week, the mayor told The Democrat-Capital.

Mayor Studer said he received a telegram Thursday, dated June 3, stating: "The VUMORE Co., did not intend to be a party to the lawsuit and have requested... to withdraw our name as a participant..."

The telegram was signed by Robert M. Clark, president of the company, Studer said.

Mentioned in the telegram was James Buckley, Sedalia attorney, who represented VU-MORE in an effort last week to seek a declaratory judgment in Circuit Court, asking the court to declare that action by the city council granting a CATV license here was beyond the council's scope of authority.

Buckley said Thursday night he had not received notification from VUMORE, as had the mayor. However, he said, "All that was involved was a misunderstanding about the use of VUMORE's name as party plaintiff. The necessary papers are being prepared to change the name of the plaintiff from VUMORE to that of the local applicants. The validity of the lawsuit is not affected."

In last week's petition, VUMORE contended it had been denied a construction permit and the right to operate a community antenna TV system here because it would not pay in excess of ten percent of its gross receipts from operation.

This figure was guaranteed the city by successful bidder, Sedalia Cable TV, Inc., Iola, Kan.

The ordinance, according to the petition filed, was labeled "discriminatory, unreasonable and invalid." VUMORE said the ordinance, as approved by the city council, has the practical effect of establishing a monopoly.

The suit contended that the tax levied is "so high as to virtually prohibit legitimate occupation and business."
